Part of Council Allied With Underworld--Mayor

241 Police Body Loses Power To Pick Chief

Mayor Praises 'Wonderful Record' Made by Hornsby.

In signing an ordinance taking from the 1941 police committee the power to elect a new chief of police, Mayor Hartsfield yesterday charged "a small minority of city council is openly allied with the underworld."

The mayor declined to amplify his statement or to name those members of the city council who, he charged, are allied with the underworld.

His only comment was he had made the same charges during his unsuccessful campaign for reelection.

Praises Hornsby.

Praising Police Chief Hornsby, the mayor said he had made "a wonderful record," and has the respect of the men "who know his sterling character."

He expressed confidence that the new administration of Mayor-elect Roy LeCraw knows this and will support "Chief Hornsby against the clamor of a few underworld characters and cheap dive keepers who are never happy in any city where the police are under honest and efficient control."

Although LeCraw has never publicly said he will insist on a change of administration of the police department, it is generally considered likely that he will advocate control of the department by a chief which his administration will designate.

Opponents of the change in the method of electing a chief yesterday said one of the first acts of the new administration on the night of January 7, when it takes over, will be to repeal the ordinance and reinvest the police committee with complete authority over the chief.

Approves Ordinance.

Hartsfield asserted he approved the ordinance because he believes it is legal, and because all department heads of the municipality except those elected by the people are named by vote of city council. He said the ordinance would make methods of selecting department heads more uniform. In connection with his charge that some of the council members are allied with the underworld, the mayor's statement read:

"There is a small minority in city council who are openly allied with the underworld element. I simply do not believe the new administration will turn them loose to wreck the police department."

Greeks Capture Italian General, Repel Enemy, Athens Declares

ATHENS, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Greek troops occupied more hills surrounding the besieged Italian base at Koritza today, captured hundreds of additional prisoners, including the commanding general of Mussolini's Centaur Division, and hurled the Fascists back generally along the mountainous battle front, authoritative sources declared tonight.

The capture of the additional hills was said to have forged a strong new link in the iron ring being drawn around Koritza, which for almost a week has been pounded day and night by Greek artillery.

The capture of the prisoners on the central front, was declared to FALL VICTIM — Pretty Audrey Anderton plummeted to her death yesterday after falling or jumping from a 16th-floor apartment window in New York.

N.Y. Socialite Falls 16 Floors To Her Death

Plunges Screaming From Apartment of Countess Cousin.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—(AP)—A 16-story fall brought instant death today to Audrey Anderton, 24, post-debutante daughter of the president of the New York County Medical Association.

Screaming as she fell, Miss Anderton plunged from the apartment of her cousin, Countess Scherr-Thoss, wife of Count Hans Christophe Scherr-Thoss.

The countess told police Miss Anderton, in good spirits, had arrived a few minutes before. The countess said that a few minutes after she went into an adjoining room with her maid, she heard screams, rushed into the living room, and found the window open.

Dr. Walter P. Anderton told police that while his daughter had been under a physician's treatment, he was unable to account for her death.

Miss Anderton, who was listed in the social register, was not active in society.

Woods, Fields Combed by 400 For Lost Baby

Tot, 2, Missing Near Cartersville, Feared Suffering From Cold.

More than 400 men were searching the woods and fields eight miles north of Cartersville last night for Murray Upshaw Jr., 2-year-old son of a prominent Bartow county farmer, who disappeared while playing in the yard at his home about 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

Fear that the child, lightly clad in play clothes, was suffering from cold, spurred the search as neighbors, highway patrolmen and CCC camp workers combed the countryside.

As darkness came on and searchers met with no success, Sheriff George Gaddis and Commissioner A. V. Neal, leading the hunt, sent to Marietta for Cobb county prison camp bloodhounds.

Patrolmen Aid.

Highway patrolmen, under orders from Major Lon Sullivan to lend every aid possible, rushed the dogs to the Upshaw home.

For hours after the child's disappearance, efforts were made to locate his father, Murray Upshaw, who left home early yesterday morning to sell a load of cotton and had not returned. He reached home early last night and immediately joined in the quest.

Mrs. Upshaw, the mother of the child, is the former Betty Raines, one of the two girls reared by the late Corra Harris, noted Georgia author, at her home near Rydal.

Playing Alone.

The child, she told Sheriff Gaddis, disappeared while playing alone in the yard. Noticing that he was not to be seen where he customarily played, she made a quick search near the house and then called for help.

The searching party, small during the early part of the day, grew as word spread of the child's disappearance until lanterns and torches were seen in every woodland and thicket in the area last night.

Many parts of Bartow county are pocked with "test holes" dug in quest of mineral traces, and it was feared the child may have wandered and fallen into one of these.

Two Spanish Loyalists Sentenced To Die Today

MADRID, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Julian Zugazagotia, former member of the cabinet of Republican Spain, and Antonio Cruz Salido, one-time Republican secretary of war, are scheduled to be executed at dawn tomorrow.

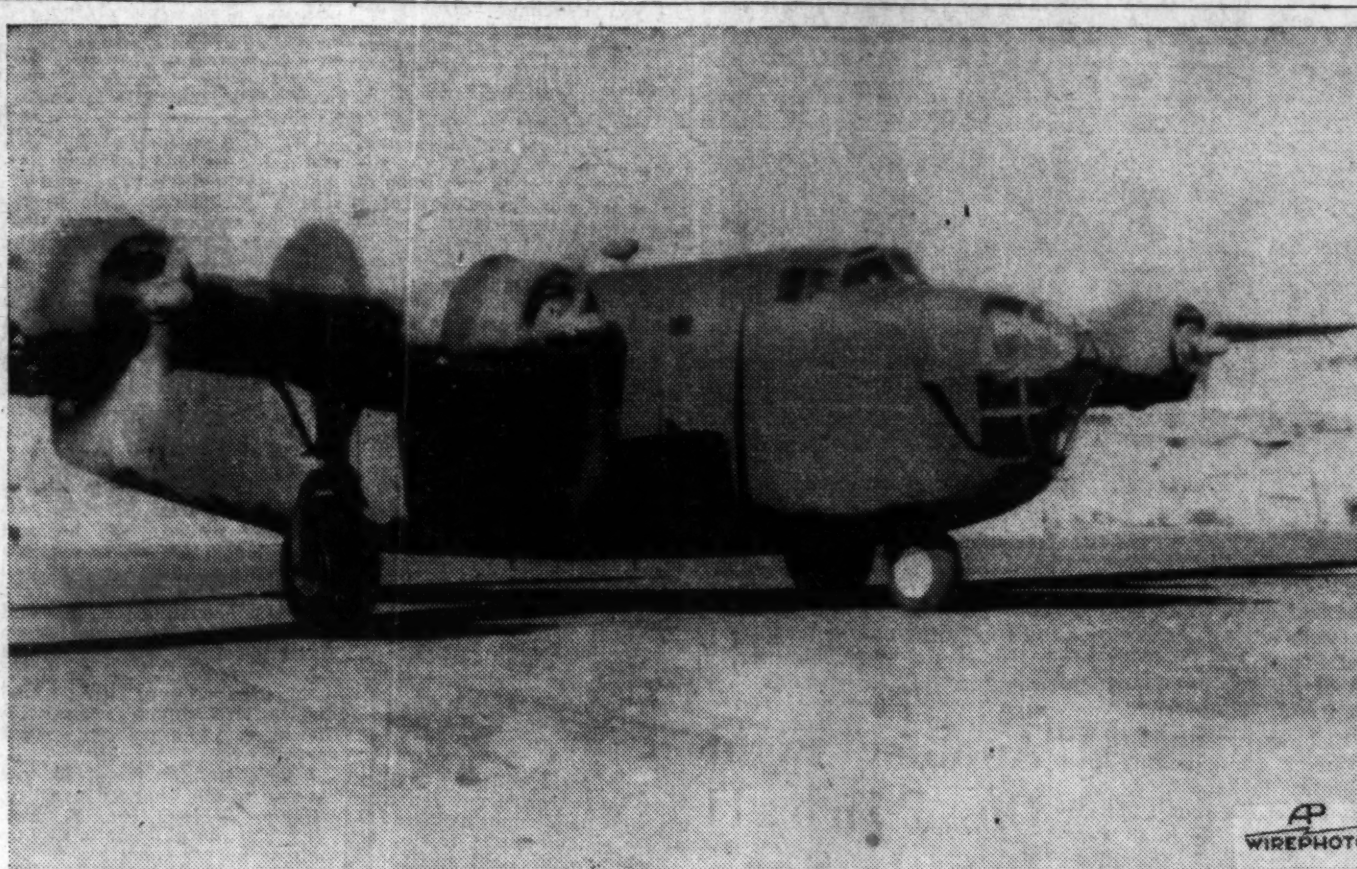

They and three other men prominent in the defeated Republican regime were sentenced to death by a court martial October 22. When the others are to die has not been announced.

TESTED FOR BRITAIN—The first of seven long-range, four-engine B-24 bombers reportedly contracted for by Great Britain is shown as it prepared at San Diego, Cal., for one of the test flights it has been undergoing this week. The 20-ton plane, already wearing a coat of camouflage, is powered with four 1,200-horsepower radial engines, which give it a cruising range of over 3,000 miles and a top speed of better than 300 miles an hour. Britain is to get half of American war supply output. (Story on Page 10.)

Wild 40-Mile Chase Ends on Railroad Track

Alleged Liquor Driver Escapes; Faces 57 Charges If Caught.

A 90-mile-an-hour police-liquor car chase that ended on a spur railroad track in the yards of the Atlantic Steel Company last night resulted in the injury of one man, minor damage to two autos and the arrest of a Negro who said he was a "put-off man," Radio Patrolmen T. P. Epps and J. D. Timmie reported.

The driver of the car escaped, they said.

Officers said it was the longest and one of the wildest chases ever participated in by the department. They estimated they pursued the alleged liquor car at least 40 miles after "jumping" it at Hilliard and Irwin streets shortly before 8 o'clock.

The chase went into every section of the city, except the southwest part, and on 12 different occasions the two cars sped down Courtland street.

As the liquor car fled down Techwood drive, it hit a man at Harris street but he received only minor injuries, it was said. Police stated the liquor car ran through 17 red traffic lights, and past 26 stop signs during the long chase.

Authorities said the driver of the car, if captured, will be booked on a total of 57 charges, including speeding, driving through red lights, driving past stop signs, reckless driving, hitting a person, illegal registration, carrying a concealed weapon and pointing a pistol.

They said the pistol charges are based on the statement of the Negro—Samuel (Preacher) Cummings, of a Piedmont avenue address, who reported that the driver forced him at the point of a gun to stay in the speeding car.

In police parlance, it was explained, a "put off man" is a person who rides with the driver of a liquor car and delivers contraband at its destination.

300 Autos Halted In N. Y. Sleet Storm

RICHFIELD SPRINGS, N. Y., Nov. 8.—(AP)—State police reported about 300 automobiles stalled or ditched tonight by a sleet storm along United States Route 20 in a 25-mile stretch east of this village. Near midnight, the freezing rain continued, and with highway department workers sending the road, one of two main east-west arteries across the state, the troops advised motorists to avoid the section,

Gone Are the Wind-sors For Gone With Wind Revival

Plans Were for Edward and Wally To Attend But the British Government Said an Emphatic 'No'—and That's That.

By HAROLD MARTIN.

Now the whole story can be told. Atlanta's big "Gone With the Wind" anniversary premiere WON'T be a double feature. The marquee will not read, as for a while the folks thought it would read:

"Gone With the Wind"

AND

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor can't come. The British government, always heavy-footed, has put down the heaviest foot of all. "No," it has said emphatically to the plea that it would be a great way to seal the friendship of nations if His Majesty's representative in the Bahamas and his American spouse could come over as a special added attraction to the second premiere showing of "Gone With the Wind."

The movies would even turn over the whole proceeds, every penny of the take, in fact, with no cuts for help, lights or water, to the British War Relief Fund. And if the second showing drew anywhere near the first, it ought to be a pretty penny indeed.

Government Says "No."

But His Majesty's government was adamant. His Majesty's government couldn't see the Duke and Duchess taking the place of bank night, even if British War Relief Funds would swell thereby.

"Hi say," the British attitude seemed to be, "you're really asking us to let the Duke play the part of a blooming set of dishes, doncher know."

Rumor also hath it that His Majesty's government was just a little fearful of letting the Duke get away from the quiet backwaters of Nassau, too. It has been a long time since the Duke has been on a good rousing toot among the bright lights—even Atlanta's kind—and there are some who think His Majesty's government was fearful the Duke might not want to rush back to work as soon as it was all over.

He might take a notion he wanted to see the Golden Gate, or the inside of a New York night club. He might want to visit an old pal in Chicago, or spend a while with his wife's folks at Baltimore. All sorts of things might happen if the Duke set foot on the continent.

MGM Gives Up.

So MGM, having pulled strings around Washington that practically yanked the British ambassador out the embassy window, has given up.

There's going to be a premiere, right on, but it won't be the huge, scintillating, white-tie and tails affair it would have been if the Duke had been allowed to come and bring the Duchess along.

There will be stars, but they will consist mainly of Vivien Leigh and whoever else of movieland's luminaries not working at the time.

And the price, which would have been $5 or so, if a gander at the Duke and Duchess had gone with the price of admission, will be something less astronomical.

MGM is not moaning low about it. It would have been a great piece of promotion for the picture if it had gone through. And it would have meant a nice fat check for the British War Relief Fund.

But there would have been a lot of headaches connected with it, too. Some impulsive anti-Britisher might have taken the opportunity to pop the Duke with a tomato, or something, while they were responsible for him.

The thought of something like that happening to the British Lion even chills the blood of Leo, the MGM lion, and makes MGM folks halfway glad the Duke's home-folks won't let him off.

U. S. Freighter Sunk; 37 of Crew Rescued

Australia Reports Ship Destroyed by Mine; One Missing.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 9.—(Saturday)—(AP)—Australian Navy Minister William Hughes announced today that the United States ship City of Rayville had been sunk, presumably by a mine, and that all but one of her crew of 38 had been rescued. No other details were given.

The City of Rayville, a 5,883-ton freighter owned by the United States Maritime Commission, arrived at Sydney, Australia, October 14, from New York.

Built in Tampa, Fla., by the Oscar Daniels Company, in 1920, the vessel was chartered to the Maritime Commission by the United States Lines last February for $4,706 monthly when those lines bought the good will and trade name of the American Pioneer Lines.

The ship's port of registry is Tampa.

The City of Rayville was the first American ship destroyed in the present war.

Spain Acts for Closer Latin American Bonds

MADRID, Nov. 8.—(UP)—The Official Journal yesterday published a law creating the "Consejo de la Hispanidad," a body whose primary object will be to increase spiritual and intellectual bonds between Spain, Latin America and the Philippines.

There will be stars, but they will consist mainly of Vivien Leigh and whoever else of movieland's luminaries not working at the time.

And the price, which would have been $5 or so, if a gander at the Duke and Duchess had gone with the price of admission, will be something less astronomical.

Waves of RAF Drop Tons of Heaviest Bombs

Arms Factory Attacked From End to End in Greatest Raid.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Nov. 8.—(UP)—One of the fiercest British air raids of the war on Friedrichshafen, site of the great German Zeppelin works, was reported in progress tonight by resident of Romanshorn. The British raiders appeared at 8:45 p. m., it was said, and encountered hot antiaircraft fire. The flashes of bursting bombs and shells were clearly visible across Lake Constance, it was reported. The raid was still in progress at 10:40 p. m.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—A four-hour British bombing attack which left the vast Krupp armaments works in Essen, Germany, enveloped in "one huge sheet of fire"—the longest and mightiest assault yet loosed upon that vital Nazi war foundry—was reported by the air ministry tonight.

It was a bombardment which began a little after 8 o'clock last night and went on intermittently through the night and into the early morning hours. When it was over returning pilots said the flames could be seen 60 miles away.

Thousands of Bombs.

It was in several senses an unprecedented raid, according to British accounts, for it was launched by an extraordinarily big force of medium and heavy bombers, dropping what the ministry called "some of the heaviest caliber bombs yet carried into Germany."

Explosives were loosed by the uncounted ton, fire bombs by the thousands, and every section of the great works was declared hit—workshops, machine shops and even the plants' administration buildings.

The assaulting forces sprang in waves, it was added. The plant section was straddled by falling bombs from end to end, the ministry reported, "and within a few moments the whole of the factory area had become a mass of raging flames engulfing the long line of buildings."

Continuous Explosions.

"One after the other in a long procession the following sorties (of bombers) came in to unload bombs on the blazing target. . . . At one period of the attack ex-

They were slain when the bomb exploded as they attempted to start their father's automobile in front of their home in Scranton's fashionable Hill district. The explosive was attached to the machine in an apparent effort to take the father's life.

Police worked on four theories in their investigation. They held that a disgruntled patient may have wanted to kill Rebhorn; that the bomb was placed in his machine by mistake; that a miner who lost a compensation claim against a coal company might have planned the crime, or that friends of inmates in Scranton's licensed disorderly houses might have perpetrated the outrage.

Rivers Defends Finances of Highway Unit

Governor Contends Figures in Auditor's Report Are Misleading.

Governor Rivers sprang to the defense of Highway Department finances yesterday, ordering State Auditor Zach Arnold to furnish him with the amount of matured, earned, payable and past due obligations of the department as of October 31, 1940.

Although the state auditor pointed out in his audit two weeks ago that the deficit of the Highway Department was approximately $13,866,000 on June 30, the Governor contended this figure was misleading because it included commitments on contracts which would not be fulfilled for a year or two.

Funds Withheld. The Governor's action yesterday followed the disclosure that the United States Bureau of Public Roads had notified the Highway Board that it was withholding federal funds pending an improvement in the financial condition of the department.

State highway officials said the federal order would not affect the completion of the new Atlanta-Marietta super-highway, since this project was included in the 1939 program and has already been approved.

Arnold said he would have the answer to the Governor's question ready this morning. His audit was released two weeks ago.

Following a conference with Arnold and officials of his office and Board Members L. L. Patten and Herman Watson, the chief executive released a letter he was sending to the state auditor. The letter said, in part:

Many Figures Quoted. "There have been so many figures quoted pro and con with respect to the financial status of the State Highway Department and so many different interpretations of your audit of the department and of financial statements by the department that I am of the opinion that the conclusion has been generally reached that the amount of matured and unpaid obligations of the Highway Department amount to varying sums, ranging from $13,000,000 to $21,000,000.

"If I interpret your audit correctly, this conclusion is far from correct and the aforementioned figures not only include the past due obligations of the Highway Department, but also include commitments for contracts some of which will not be fulfilled for many months and even some extending over as long a period as two years before they will become earned and due."

The Governor said he did not expect the amount the department owes and cannot pay immediately would run more than about $4,000,000.

Villa Rica Sets Nov. 20 as Day Of Turkey Trot

Stock Show, Speeches and Other Events To Be Features.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. VILLA RICA, Ga., Nov. 8.—Villa Rica's seventh annual turkey trot—an event which each year draws several thousand persons to town for a day of fun and frolic—will be held November 20, the day before Thanksgiving.

Mayor Frank S. Pope, chairman of the program committee, has arranged a day of music, speeches, free prizes and a large number of turkeys which will be turned loose as the climax of the day.

At noon, the Civitan Club will entertain local merchants, visiting state and county officials, newspaper representatives and other distinguished guests at luncheon in the Civitan hall.

The stock show held during the morning will be an outstanding feature of the day, with cash prizes for participants.

The complete program of speakers will be announced early next week.

MORE LIGHT FOR CITY. COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 8.—Columbus city lights will burn more brightly next year, City Manager Marshall Morton was authorized yesterday to draw up a new contract with the Georgia Power Company whereby more than half of the city's approximately 900 street lights will be increased from 250 to 400 candlepower. The power will be increased at the rate of 100 lights per month.

Welfare Office Twice-Married Is Not Ready Couple Back in For the Snow Divorce Court

'Digging In' Piece by Talmadge Seems Icy to Workers.

By LUKE GREENE. The atmosphere in the State Department of Public Welfare yesterday was sparked with the mingled sentiments of the poet and paraphraser: "If winter comes, can Talmadge be far behind?"

The Sage of Sugar Creek had a piece in his newspaper, The Statesman, saying that many suspected the merit system now being installed in the department was a "dig in" move on the part of appointees of Governor Rivers.

It was a bit icy in its suggestiveness, this piece by the next Governor of Georgia. At least, that's the way it seemed to the welfare employees. When they repeated the phrase, "digging in," they thought of winter and snows and howling winds.

If you mentioned "digging in" to a welfare employee, you stood the chance of having most anything thrown at you, ranging from a medium-sized chair to an extra-large desk. The welfare employees just weren't ready for the snow.

However, it was disclosed that a few of the employees in the administrative division and some of the social workers who already have taken their merit system examinations are displeased with the type of questions they were asked and are planning a petition to have the examination declared invalid. An authoritative source said their claims were that the questions were not suited to the requirements of the jobs.

But it was learned there was another angle to this prospect. Some of the employees feel they had rather wait until the next administration comes in to stand their examinations than be appointees of the outgoing Governor.

Governor Rivers, it was said, is attempting to rush the examinations in an effort to get his appointees in the respective jobs before the advent of Talmadge.

It was explained that under the rules and regulations the present holder of the job will stand a good chance of retaining his position provided he passes the examination by making a rating of 70. However, there will be a total of three to be considered for each job, with the director actually doing the selecting.

The mere fact that an incumbent stands the examination, passes and is appointed does not mean that he cannot be removed by the next Governor. Nevertheless, with the examinations over and Rivers appointees filling the positions, it would be harder for the next Governor to remove them, it was pointed out.

If the efficiency of an employee, for example, is in question, he may be fired. However, he can appeal to the merit council. The council may order him restored. But it might be possible for the director to evade this order, it was said.

Meanwhile, there was much talk of "digging in." Someone suggested there was at least one new state office building to dig in, and there might have to be a mass movement to the main capitol grounds.

Army Officer Dies of Injuries In Auto Crash

Another Officer, Civilian Critically Hurt in Tennessee Wreck.

A head-on automobile crash near Jasper, Tenn., early yesterday afternoon brought death to an army officer and probably fatal injuries to another officer en route north from Fort Benning, lesser injuries to two others and severe hurts to a civilian motorist.

The victims were: First Lieutenant Robert Arnold Mason, Eau Claire, Wis., who died last night in Newell sanitarium, Chattanooga.

Brain Injuries. Second Lieutenant Thomas Edrick Newth, unconscious from injuries to the brain and suffering from a fractured arm. His address was not immediately available.

First Lieutenant Clarence Herbert Jankowski, Chicago, suffering from numerous cuts and an eye injury.

Second Lieutenant Fred Robert Butzin, address not available, who escaped with bruises and shock.

A. L. Anze, 57, address unavailable, who was in Physicians' and Surgeons' Hospital, Chattanooga, suffering from possible brain concussion, and a fractured knee and arm.

Officials Notified. The four officers were brought to the sanitarium in ambulances and Fort Benning officials were notified.

An investigation by Trooper Lee Hixson, of the Tennessee Highway Patrol, brought out, he said, that Anze was attempting to pass a truck and was unable to return to the right side of the road when he discovered the oncoming automobile.

All four officers had just completed refresher courses of three months at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, and were going to Fort Custer, Mich., for active duty.

They left Columbus yesterday morning.

Domestic Relations Unit Attempts To Untangle Pounds' Mixup.

By FRANK DRAKE. The Fulton domestic relations court yesterday delved into and temporarily, at least, untangled some of the marital difficulties which have ensnared Eli E. Pound, $450-per-month tire company salesman, and his blond wife, Kathryn B. Pound.

It seems, according to the story related to Judge Virlyn B. Moore by Pound, that the Pounds were first married in 1919 and were divorced a few years later only to be remarried in 1926. Now Pound is suing for another divorce, asserting that they separated on May 4, 1940, while they were living at a large downtown club of which he is a member.

Cross Bill Filed. Mrs. Pound has filed a cross bill denying his allegations and setting up some claims of her own, including a demand for $250 a month temporary alimony. It was on the question of temporary alimony that the two faced each other across the table in domestic relations court.

Chic in a purple hat and veil, and a fur coat, Mrs. Pound told the court she claimed no responsibility for the separation and to set forth her need for more than the $100 a month her husband had offered her.

"I did not leave him," she earnestly protested. "Why, I work in the ground he walks on. I love the little man."

Pound shifted his some 200 pounds of muscular weight in his chair nearby and grinned sheepishly.

Differ on Date. Judge Moore stopped the two when they attempted to discuss with him the details of their separation—which the husband claims took place on May 4 and the wife says didn't occur until July 27.

But in their suits the husband claims she threatened his life on May 3 and made him nervous, and she answered that they continued living together until July 27, and that he slept mightily peaceful in that interval to have been worried about his life.

After Pound, on the stand, told his side of the financial question, Judge Moore asked Mrs. Pound's attorney, Howard, Mrs. Pound's attorney, to sum up the case for his honor.

"Judge, this man makes $450 a month and he can well afford to give his wife $250 or $300 a month," said the lawyer.

Corrects Attorney. "My client has been ill and she needs money for food and for medical care and medicine. Here she is, a woman of 42..."

"I am not," snapped Mrs. Pound. "I'm 41."

"Well," continued Howard. "Here she is, a woman of 41. She has been accustomed to living comfortably and now she has no money nor anyone to take care of her. I think the sum we are asking for is reasonable."

"Judge, this is a question of temporary alimony," interposed Lon Duckworth, attorney for Pound. "Temporary alimony isn't meant to be sufficient to create an estate."

Judge Moore discovered that Mrs. Pound has been paying $60 a month for a room in a hotel catering to the fashionable. As he wrote an order directing Pound to pay her $125 a month temporary alimony, and restraining her from molesting him in any way, the judge commented that this amount gave her $60 for her room, $40 for food, and $25 for medicine and medical care.

"If it was me, I'd get a less expensive room," he said.

State Is Facing Still More Voting. Atlanta and Fulton county voters yesterday were advised to save their ballot-scratching pencils—there are more elections before 1940 rolls into history.

Throughout the state, 1,700 justices of the peace must be elected on December 7, and some of them are in Fulton county.

Voters of Atlanta will elect nominees to 34 city positions on Wednesday, December 4, with only one contest looming. Laird M. Long Jr., electrician, has announced as an independent opposing James E. Jackson Jr., attorney and Democratic nominee for one of the two councilmanic positions from the first ward.

Included in the list of nominees to be elected locally are a mayor, 12 members of council, six aldermen, six members of the board of education, two recorders and seven department heads.

Hotel Furnishings Theft Is Charged

Mrs. Z. C. Roles, who, detectives said, "had a hankering to furnish her room with hotel equipment," was indicted yesterday by the grand jury on a charge of larceny from the house.

The true bill accuses her of taking seven napkins, four bed spreads, three bath mats, one table cloth, 13 towels, five dozen cakes, three shower curtains, 11 bed sheets, one coffee pot, one pillow and 13 pillow cases from a downtown hotel at which she was registered as a guest.

The $85 worth of goods were recovered in a Crew street room, it was said.

BOSSES PANNED—The tables were reversed yesterday as members of the Atlanta Club, organization of women employees at the city hall, called their bosses to task at the annual gridiron dinner. "Commodore" Mayor Hartsfield is shown as he vainly tried to take charge of the good ship "Atlanta." With him are his staff, Miss Sarah Cleveland, club president, next to the mayor, and Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, who were equally unsuccessful in maintaining official dignity.

Bosses Given 'The Works' by City Employees

Women Workers at City Hall Hold Annual Dinner.

Mayor Hartsfield's veto was overridden; City Comptroller B. Graham West's budget was eliminated; Waterworks Manager W. Zode Smith's water was cut off, and other department heads yesterday suffered similar indignities as working girl members of the Atlanta Club, organization of women employees at the city hall, went on their annual rampage.

The occasion was the dinner the ladies gave to their bosses, and as usual it was a sort of gridiron affair during which the bosses were put on the pan, but even the departmental chiefs liked it.

The good ship Atlanta sailed and finally was brought to anchor in the harbor of good food and good times. The club, bossed by Miss Sarah Cleveland, president, just took the bossy boys over the hurdles.

Mayor Hartsfield was decked out in a sailor cap and was made "admiral of the ship." He was forced to lead the department chiefs in singing for "their desert."

"Admiral" Hartsfield said after January 6 (the date on which Mayor-Elect Roy LeCraw takes over administration of the municipal government) his address will be "Joel Hurt Memorial Park," and "I Want All of You to Buy Apples From Me."

A group of city hall "Red Cross nurses" demonstrated how first aid should not be given with Hartsfield, K. Wade Bennett, personnel technician of the personnel department, and Curtis R. Gholson, office manager of the municipal revenue collector's office, as victims. With a few strokes of ink, and considerable ledger-main, however, three Red Cross babies were born before the very eyes of the audience. They were painted on the backs of the hands of the victimized trio.

Duce's Troops Ride Bicycles to Battle; Bridges Blown Up.

By REYNOLDS PACKARD.
WITH ITALIAN TROOPS IN GREECE, Nov. 6.—(Delayed)—(UP)—The Italian army today brought near to a finish the first phase of the Italo-Greek war—a "colonial-type campaign"—carried out chiefly on bicycles, mules and with cavalry—and prepared to launch a new type of drive utilizing the power of heavy artillery.

After spending a week with the Italian army in Greece, I am convinced of the striking similarity between the Italian tactics in Ethiopia and the present Italian push into Greece. The difference, however, is that the Greek terrain offers far greater obstacles and the Greeks are equipped with the most modern artillery and rifles available in the world, including the best that Britain has to offer.

This type of jumbled terrain necessitates taking five or six rows of mountains at a time, instead of a single peak as in Ethiopia.

Furthermore, the Greeks have corrugated these mountain sides with strip above strip of trenches guarded with barbed-wire entanglements, making the mountains look like giant washboards.

In caverns dug deep into the mountain sides the Greeks have embedded the artillery with which they are attempting to halt the Italians. This artillery forms the Greeks' main defensive weapon against the Italian advance.

The Greeks also are dynamiting all bridges and highway curves in a desperate effort to slow up the Italian drive. Slicing through the mud which still persists despite three days of sun, I found that every single bridge, big or small, had been blown up.

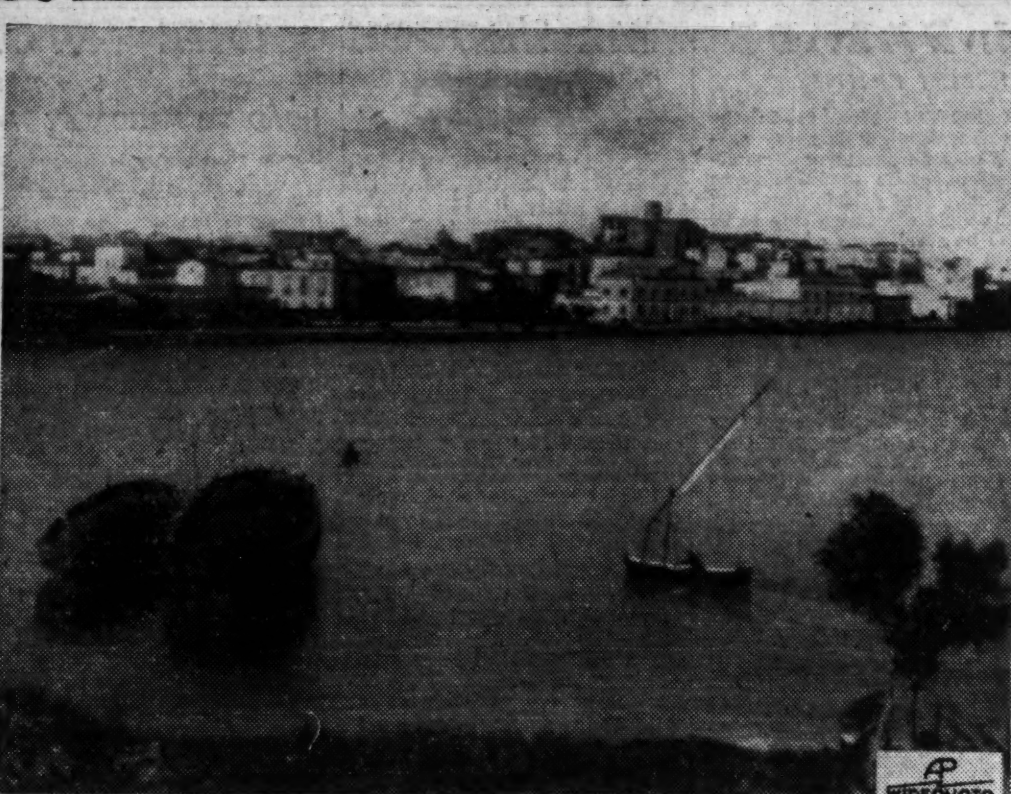

Every curve of the road was mined, and, as the Italians approached, the Greeks discharged the mines by long electric wires leading back to observation posts sometimes miles away. In one sector alone I counted a total of six bridges which had been blown to bits by the Greeks, and at least a score of mines, strategically placed, had each brought down half a mountain side when set off.

The Italians have been bringing up heavy artillery, opening for the first time a heavy barrage to protect infantry advances. Heretofore the Italians have been virtually without any artillery screen, depending almost entirely on bicycle pushes.

These bicycle pushes have proved especially effective during the torrential rains, when motorized units were slowed up by skidding.

Morgenthau To Inspect Defenses in Caribbean

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Nov. 8.—(P)—United States Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., arrived here tonight from Miami on a brief vacation during which he will inspect new defenses in the eastern Caribbean.

ITALIAN BASE BOMBED—The British announced last night that the RAF had bombed Brindisi, naval base at the heel of the Italian boot. Heavy damage was wrought on enemy supplies. This picture of the harbor was made before the war.

British, Greeks Bomb Ports on 'Heel' of Italy

Planes Wreak Damage on Bases at Brindisi and Valona.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 8.—(UP)—Greek planes bombed Brindisi, important Italian port and base on the Adriatic, today and damaged the railroad station and tracks, according to a Greek radio broadcast received here tonight.

An Athens dispatch of Exchange Telegraph said the southern Yugoslav city of Bitolj had been bombed again by Italian aircraft.

RAF AGAIN BOMBS ITALIAN 'HEEL' PORT

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 8.—(P)—The RAF reported today it had carried out a five-ton bomb assault on Valona, Albanian port opposite the "heel" of the Italian boot, in the second heavy raid there in as many days.

Twice yesterday British planes swept over Valona and spread havoc among Italian planes on the ground at its airfield, a communication said.

Italian planes rose to meet the attack and killed the gunner of one British plane. Two British planes failed to return from other operations over Albania.

SUES FOR DIVORCE
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 8.—(P)—Motion Picture Director John Brahm sued today for a divorce from Dolly Haas, British actress, charging cruelty. They were married at Tijuana, Baja California, in 1937.

Briton Removes Bomb, Is Fined

LONDON, Nov. 8.—(P)—A neighborly sort of fellow, Frederick Leighton-Morris, 30, safely removed a time bomb from a West End apartment—and was fined 100 pounds (about $400) by a London court today for doing so.

Leighton-Morris, who said the Auxiliary Fire Service rejected him because of his "groovy heart and 'wonky' lungs," found the bomb under the bed of a French officer who had moved into the next room and gone back to sleep without knowing the bomb was there.

The law says civilians must leave unexploded bombs to "suicide" units—the regular disposal squads.

Leighton-Morris said they'd turned him down, too, so he'd acted on his own.

Urges Capability.
"People who run a great city soon find, as I have found, that not all its affairs can be made a matter of pork barrel politics. There must always be a fair amount of capability and honesty among the administrative officials, or the government will collapse in a sorry mess of inefficiency and corruption."

The mayor took occasion at the annual dinner given to departments by the Atlanta Club, organization of women employees at the city hall, to praise all department heads and to call on council members present to "let the department heads run their departments without dictation from council."

2 Draftees Except Laws of Chance

The national lottery does not observe the laws of chance. Yesterday morning Mrs. J. E. Kilpatrick, clerk of Fulton Draft Board No. 6, assigned Order No. 1659 to Herbert D. Gilchrist, of 1452 Copeland avenue. It was the same as his serial number.

Statistics of selective service headquarters calculated rapidly and found terrible odds against a registrant holding identical serial and order numbers.

Then, later in the day, Carlos Hemperley, chairman of Draft Board No. 12, gave Order No. 1062 to Lawrence H. Brown Jr., of 203 Newman avenue in East Point. It also was the same as his serial number.

Chamberlain Is Gravely Ill, Wife Discloses

King George's Physician Is Kept Constantly on Call.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—(P)—Neville Chamberlain, the apostle of peace and patience who led Britain through the Munich crisis of September, 1938, and finally surrendered the post of prime minister only when the German blitzkrieg began in the Low Countries last May 10, lay gravely ill tonight.

Mrs. Chamberlain announced his illness in a message to the press. Chamberlain himself is at his country home, Highfield, in Hampshire. The King's physician, Lord Horder, lives nearby and is constantly on call.

It was disclosed tonight, incidentally, that U. S. Ambassador Kennedy had lunched with the 71-year-old former prime minister just before his recent departure for America.

Chamberlain underwent an operation for an intestinal obstruction July 29 and was discharged from a nursing home only last August 12.

At that time he appeared to be recovering rapidly, but on October 3 he finally left the cabinet by resigning as lord president of council, a post he had taken when Winston Churchill succeeded him as prime minister.

For years Chamberlain has suffered from attacks of gout, and his delicate health has long been known.

NEW PASTOR ARRIVES.

McDONOUGH, Ga., Nov. 8.—The Rev. and Mrs. A. T. Persons and family have moved from McCormick, S. C., to McDonough, where Mr. Persons has accepted a call from the Baptist church. He is a native of Yatesville and served pastorates in Stone Mountain, Conyers and other Georgia cities before going to South Carolina.

The Army IN GEORGIA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—(P)—The War Department announced today the award of a $1,483,566 contract for construction of temporary housing at Fort Benning, Ga., to the William Lumber Company, Columbus, Ga. The time allowed for completion was not disclosed.

FOUR GEORGIANS ACCEPT COMMISSIONS.

Four Georgians have recently accepted commissions as second lieutenants in the Organized Reserve, Fourth Corps Area, yesterday. They and the branch of service to which they were assigned are: Darwin Voltaire Brake Jr., Milledgeville, infantry; David Eli Cavanaugh, Waycross, Signal Corps; William Hall McComb, Milledgeville, infantry; and Russell Nixon Parks, 1215 McLendon avenue, Air Corps.

First Lieutenant James Thomas King, Medical Corps Reserve, Valdosta, has been ordered to a year's active duty at Barksdale Field, La., Fourth Corps Area headquarters. Other orders announced through headquarters include the call to active duty of Second Lieutenant Riley Alexander Graham, Signal Corps Reserve, of Fort McPherson. Lieutenant Graham has been assigned to the 48th Signal Company at Fort Benning.

Private Wayne H. Stockdale, of Fort McPherson, assigned to the medical department, veterinary service, will be sent to Washington next month for study at the

Shipping Space Nearly Steady, British Assert

Acknowledge Concern, However, Over Destruction Wrought.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—(P)—Britain claims to have almost as much merchant shipping space as she had when the war began, despite German air, surface and submarine raiders, but officials acknowledged today their concern over the destruction wrought and threatened by Germany's counter-blockade.

The British admit the loss by submarine action of 3,547,000 tons of their own, allied and neutral shipping in the 14 months of the war (as against the German claim of 7,162,200 tons destroyed by all sorts of action).

This loss, they insist, has been almost replaced by new construction and chartering of non-British ships, but Britain's need for more shipping space and sufficient fighting ships to guard it without weakening other sectors of her naval power is openly acknowledged.

The job of keeping Britain's vital lines moving has been complicated by indications that German surface raiders, including at least one pocket battleship, are on the loose in the north Atlantic.

The pocket battleship presumably is the Admiral Scheer, a term of the Admiral Graf Spee which was scuttled by her own commander after three British cruisers chased her into Montevideo last December. Her working base presumably is some Norwegian port.

Not only must strong naval units be diverted in the effort to track down the pocket battleship, but so long as she is on the high seas it seems that stronger forces must be assigned to convoys to and from America.

The 50 American destroyers traded to Britain for bases in the western hemisphere have helped bolster Britain's resources, but the needs of the navy run into hundreds of escort vessels, large and small.

ENTIRE CONVOY SUNK.

GERMANY CLAIMS
BERLIN, Nov. 8.—(P)—An entire British merchant convoy of from 15 to 20 ships totaling 86,000 tons has been destroyed in the very middle of Britain's vital north Atlantic lifeline by German surface warships, according to today's Nazi claims.

This success in the air and sea counter-blockade of Britain apparently came three days ago, but the heightening tempo of the campaign was reflected in the report of an informed source that today Stuka dive bombers blasted 31,000 tons of shipping to the bottom out of strongly protected convoys and damaged 23,000 tons.

Six ships were reported to have gone under today under the Stukas' bomb sights, two of them "somewhere west of Ireland."

AID OF U. S. WANTED

ON BASES IN IRELAND
LONDON, Nov. 8.—(UP)—A movement was under way today in parliament to persuade the United States to approach Eire's Prime Minister Eamon de Valera regarding the lease of Irish coastal bases for the British navy and Royal Air Force.

Parliamentary circles said that such bases are necessary to halt the German submarine menace to Britain's overseas supplies of food, munitions, raw materials and airplanes, particularly from the United States.

SEVENTH CORPS OFFICER ORDERED TO OGLETHORPE

FORT OGLETHORPE, Ga., Nov. 8.—Lieutenant Colonel Gersun Comander, now stationed with the organized reserves of the Seventh Corps Area at St. Louis, has been ordered to Fort Oglethorpe to join the staff of the station service complement of the post, Captain Charles Collier, post adjutant, announced today.

Colonel Comander will report here on November 21 or 22, and probably will become the post executive officer, Captain Collier said. However, Lieutenant Colonel John Considine, commanding officer of the Sixth Cavalry, will remain as commanding officer of the post.

NEW REPLACEMENT CENTER FOR AREA

Another replacement center, in addition to the two already announced, will be established in the Fourth Corps Area, the War Department reported yesterday.

The new center, to train draftees for service with the infantry, will accommodate 16,500 men. The War Department has already announced its plans to build a 16,500 infantry training camp near Macon and a 16,500 field artillery training center at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Officers stated that the site for the additional training camp is not yet selected.

The station service complement was organized here this week to

Six Wounded, Betrayed Greeks Lead in Capture of 250 Italians

By J. WES GALLAGHER.

SALONIKA, Greece, Nov. 8.—(P)—A young Greek army sergeant who spent 15 years of his boyhood in New York and Detroit told me today that a dawn attack by six wounded Greek soldiers paved the way for capture of 250 Italian troops in Albania.

The hand-grenade attack, he said, was the climax of a day-and-night battle in which 60 other Italians were killed.

Until the start of the war, Sergeant Constantine Kelepousis was a political science student, but today he lay in a hospital with four machinegun bullets in one arm and another bullet in his leg.

Surrender Faked.
"Several days after the war started," he said, "my company launched an attack into Albania. In one day, we made more than nine miles and captured many prisoners. Then we came to a small lake with the Italians entrenched on a nearby hill."

"We fought all morning and that afternoon the Italians jumped out of their trenches waving a white flag offering to surrender."

"My captain ordered me to take 10 men and take possession of the trenches."

"We advanced to within 100 yards of the Italians when suddenly they jumped back into the trenches and began firing on us with machineguns."

"Five of my men were killed. The rest were wounded. We huddled behind rocks all afternoon, tending our wounds as best we could, while the battle continued over our heads."

"The wounded men couldn't make their way back to their lines during the night, but at dawn a heavy fog reduced the visibility to a few feet."

"Instead of retreating, we decided to attack. We could still crawl, and we had a large supply of hand grenades."

Attack Like Army.
"We spaced ourselves over about 75 yards and, crawling forward, tossed our grenades into the Italian trench from short range. The whole thing seemed to go up in the air, amid a terrific explosion, and in a few seconds we heard screams and groans."

"The Italians—those still alive—jumped out of the trench shouting, 'Mother of God, don't throw any more!' They thought they were being attacked by a whole company instead of just six wounded men."

"By that time, our company had heard the shouting and came running across no man's land, taking 250 Italians prisoner. Sixty more were dead in the trenches."

15 Dreaded Hungary Foils Nazi Bombers Nazi Plot To Downed in Day Kidnap Horthy

RAF Destroys at Least Five Others Besides Stukas.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—(P)—A single British fighter squadron was credited by the air ministry tonight with destroying 15 of Germany's dreaded dive-bombers in one day as the RAF fought back at air attacks on vital empire shipping.

While German bombers were flying in early for their nightly assault on London, the air ministry announced that possibly incomplete reports showed at least 20 Nazi aircraft had been shot down during the day.

Aside from the 15 Stukas definitely marked down as destroyed, it was said that in the same group six "probably" were destroyed and two damaged.

Pierce antiaircraft fire on the Thames estuary was reported to have brought down two of the night's first invaders, though others crashed through the thickets of fire to scatter flares over widely separated areas and send bombs hurtling down after them.

After a scattering of daylight raids across the country, early morning Stukas rattled buildings here, in southwestern England and along the northeast coast. Bombers also were believed to be ranging over Liverpool.

Authorities permitted an announcement that two landmarks in British history and literature had been marked by a recent bomb hit, the Tower of London and St. Clement Danes church.

U. S. Mexican Army Officers Talk Defense

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—(P)—President Roosevelt told his press conference today United States and Mexican army officials were engaged in defense discussions.

Asked if negotiations were under way for joint defense plans with Mexico similar to the arrangement concluded some months ago with Canada, the chief executive replied that he believed the army was engaged along that line and recalled that General Francisco L. Urquiza, of the Mexican army, was among the last group of Latin-American army leaders to tour United States defense establishments.

ORDERED TO DUTY.

SPARTA, Ga., Nov. 8.—William E. McWhorter, for the past year Hancock county farm agent, has been ordered to report to Fort Benning for active duty in the Reserve Corps. He holds a commission as first lieutenant.

take over the service, supply, medical and police duties at the post, relieving the Sixth Cavalry of these duties.

Colonel Comander will complete the staff of four regular officers for the station complement. The other officers are Lieutenant Colonel James M. Trout, Lieutenant Colonel A. St. Louis and Major Joseph C. Kovarik.

Captain Collier also announced today that Lieutenant Rufus A. Williamson, of the signal reserves, has been ordered to report to the station complement for active duty. Lieutenant Williamson now resides in Chattanooga, where he is a member of the operations staff of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

NEW REPLACEMENT CENTER FOR AREA

Another replacement center, in addition to the two already announced, will be established in the Fourth Corps Area, the War Department reported yesterday.

The new center, to train draftees for service with the infantry, will accommodate 16,500 men. The War Department has already announced its plans to build a 16,500 infantry training camp near Macon and a 16,500 field artillery training center at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Farm Youths Off Today for Kansas City

Georgians Candidates for FFA Presidency, Speaking Title.

A delegation of Georgia farm boys—members of the Future Farmers of America—will head today for Kansas City, determined to bring back to this state the presidency of the national organization and the national public speaking title.

Alpha Fowler Jr., son of State Representative Alpha Fowler, of Douglas, is a leading candidate for the national presidency while Henley Vansant, also of Douglasville, is a candidate for the public speaking crown, having been chosen winner of the Southeastern FFA speaking contest.

Besides his contest for the presidency, Fowler, who is a former president of the Georgia Association of the FFA, and manager of his father's farm, will be one of three Georgia youths to receive the coveted degree of American Farmer.

The other two are Guinn Smith, of Whitfield county, who operates a farm while attending school at Valley Point, and Myrvin Clark, of the Sale City chapter. Clark operates a 300-acre leased farm and is buying land of his own with proceeds from livestock and agriculture farm crop which includes corn, peanuts, tobacco, cotton and truck.

Young Vansant has shown his public ability in state, tri-state and southern regional contests. His subject, "The Breaking Fullness of Day," which portrays the dawn of a new era in agriculture, won for him acclaim throughout the south. Not only is he a good speaker but an outstanding worker of the Douglas chapter of the FFA.

Accompanying the boys are H. M. Belcher Jr., president of the Georgia Association of FFA, of Macon, Brooks county; Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools; M. D. Mobley, state adviser of FFA and director of the Division of Vocational Education; T. G. Walters, state executive secretary of FFA; and four teachers of vocational agriculture whose chapters won district honors: H. L. Simpson, Sylvester; W. K. Warren, Harlem; J. L. McMullan, Jefferson, and T. G. Scott, Griffin.

Highways in Red

Once again Georgia's highway department attracts unfavorable attention to this state. The United States Bureau of Public Roads has announced that no more federal funds will be forthcoming for this state until the State Highway Board puts its financial house in order.

This is not the first time that conditions in Georgia's highway department have been such the federal authorities have been compelled to hold up funds allocated to this state. Nor, until a more businesslike system of handling the state's affairs is put into force, will it be the last.

That there is a heavy deficit in the State Highway Department treasury is evident, though exactly what this amounts to is apparently uncertain. State Auditor Zach Arnold, in his report submitted to Governor Rivers about 10 days ago, placed this deficit at more than $13,000,000 as of June 30. Governor-elect Talmadge asserts that the deficit has grown to $21,000,000 at the present time.

Certainly, the board had not planned any expenditures for the balance of the fiscal year other than those of federal funds and the state funds required to match these. This would have amounted to more than $4,000,000, inasmuch as there is $2,195,000 of unexpended federal funds for the year, the amount held up by the "freezing" order.

Too long has the highway department of Georgia been operated upon the principle of pleasing as many groups, counties or sections as possible. Delegations seeking some particular road or bridge come constantly before the board on behalf of their pet projects and, for political and other reasons, it is exceedingly difficult to refuse their requests.

Under such conditions it is not surprising when a large deficit is created. The only permanent remedy is the permanent removal of the highway board and the highway department from political influence. It should be completely divorced from political control and placed upon a solid business foundation, to be directed only by experienced businessmen, holding their positions under the same conditions similar positions are held in private industry. That is, for as long as good behavior and ability make desirable.

Now, no new contracts may be made for federal aid construction until such time as the deficit is brought to reasonable proportions.

There is only one course possible. That is for a complete cessation of new construction within the state until the revenue can catch up and take the department out of the red. Expenditure must be limited to maintenance work only.

It is a drastic step, undoubtedly. Particularly at this time when roads of military importance, all over the country, must be considered a part of the expanding national defense program.

But, when a business, private or public, is from $13,000,000 to $21,000,000 in arrears the situation is too serious for half measures.

Good News

Evidence of the effectiveness of the R. A. F. bombing attacks in Germany is found in the technical journal of the German shipbuilding industry. That journal, of course, makes no reference to the R. A. F., nor does it even whisper about bombings of German shipbuilding yards.

However, it does announce that the largest ship construction program ever undertaken by Germany has been completely stopped.

All work has been halted on 12 ships, including a 30,000-ton Atlantic liner, which were building for the Hamburg-America line as part of the war. Another project, for 11 motorships with a total tonnage of 35,000 tons, has been abandoned.

As said, there is no mention in the German journal of the R. A. F. But, what other reason can there be for cessation of a task so essential to Nazi war success? Either through direct bombing of shipyards or through lack of supplies because of the British blockade, Germany simply cannot do any ship building at present.

Which, whatever the cause, is a situation that should bring a lot of encouragement and satisfaction to all of us who want to see Britain emerge the victor in this struggle between dictatorship and democratic freedom.

We Must Not Fail

The Community Fund workers of Atlanta have extended their campaign for a full week. This is because there is still lacking $200,000 of the desired goal of $572,726 set for this year.

It was never more vitally important than this year that the social agencies which are supported through the Community Fund shall not be crippled by lack of financial support.

These days are the testing days for democracy. Never before has that theory of human government been facing so serious a test. The world is now waiting, waiting to see which shall survive, the democratic way of human freedom or the state enslavement of its people through totalitarianism.

Democracy can only survive if it shows its worth in practical achievement.

There is no more effective way of proving that democracy is a practical working force, that it deserves to survive, than by the generous support of such agencies as those in the Community Fund, through voluntary subscriptions by all the people.

The motto "I am my brother's keeper," applies to every individual in a free country. Unless we live up to that motto, we do not deserve to remain free.

Only through community service to those who must have help if life is to smile for them can we build a strong and virile nation. All the armaments, all the armies, the navies and the fleets of the skies will be in vain if the nation behind is weak, and crippled, either in body, mind or character.

We must give to the Community Fund agencies all they need.

Let's do it at once.

Pen Dipped in Vitriol

It is to be hoped for the sake of Westbrook Pegler's blood pressure that he will now forget the election. His column has been a powerful effort to knock the tar out of the New Deal, and while it is too much to expect Pegler to kiss and make up, at least one may hope that he will not try to out-Johnson old General Ironpants himself in a running engagement.

To those who still are angered at the gentleman with vitriol in his pen instead of ink, may it be said that Pegler was and is one of the best reporters in the United States. In the old-time sense of the digging reporter intent upon embarrassing facts, "Peglerizing" is no idle word to the criminal scum of the labor unions, so many of whom now rest behind bars because of his one-man war to clean up otherwise decent and honest groups of men. Unpleasant though he may be at times, especially when a person is inclined to be on the other side of the fence, his pen has been one of the most trenchant ever wielded in the public good.

Now that the votes are in, it is probable he will head for greener fields, leaving the needle in the hands of General Ironpants, who didn't need any help in the first place.

And, may it be added, the daily publication of Pegler's column in many thoroughly Democratic newspapers is in itself reassuring as to the continued freedom of the press in America.

It is months since we learned which of last year's American song hits is now current in Europe, but assume it is "Heaven Can Wait."

Strangest of all cases of suspended animation is the radio wife, turning the tears off at 3:15 p. m. today and on promptly at 3 tomorrow.

A local youth is graduating from the Deanna Durbin crush, and is thinking of skipping Myrna Loy and going right on to Irene Dunne.

Editorial Symposium

FRENCH DICTATORSHIP.

"The import of the Vichy government's joining the Central Axis means that Vice Premier Laval and other Fascist-minded Frenchmen are seeking to barter away France's democracy in exchange for the restoration of some territory now held by Germany and Italy," says the FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM, which adds: "The flaw in the Axis combination, which Laval's group would enter, is that it would force the status of master and slave upon nations like France with Germany as the master." The PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER declares, "The English-hater Laval is today frankly revealed as both ready and eager to go the limit against Britain . . . believing that the destruction of Great Britain alone can save France." The written words of Hitler (in Mein Kampf) shows that Laval imagines a vain thing. The best France can get in such a case is permanent slavery." And the MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL sees in the denunciation of Foreign Minister Paul Baudouin a repudiation of his assertion that "under no circumstances" would France make war "against her old ally," but now "With Laval in the French foreign office anything can happen, much probably will which will be detrimental to the British cause."

The PHILADELPHIA BULLETIN sees "democracy in France . . . in a state of suspended animation . . . if not dead," and pictures Pierre Laval, "practical man in the Vichy regime," as "preparing France to play the subordinate role assigned to it in Hitler's Europe," while the BOSTON POST points out "The history of France" repeats "that of Germany of 1930 to 1935. Laval is the French Hitler. Petain is the counterpart of Von Hindenburg. Conquered France lies prostrate as did the decaying Germany of that period. An effort is being made to stimulate French nationalism to regiment the nation. Rising serenely to a place of totalitarian power is Laval, as Petain swiftly goes into the decline of advanced years and overbearing burdens."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—In the post-election lull, it is every citizen's duty to pray that four years from now the presidential candidates will not croon, appear in blackface, or do tumbling turns between orations. The trend is that way, and probably nothing except the united prayers of a united people can put a stop to it.

During the campaign just ended, to be sure, there was a great national debate. But there was also a continuous side show, the quality of which was aptly summed up in a remarkable election day head line in the Washington Post—"Welles and Joe Louis Wind Up Hot Maryland Election Drive." Except that there are not two dead panes in the United States under the canopy of state and the brown bomber hardly seem to have been well matched, and their appearance as the inheritors of the Lincoln-Douglas tradition seems superficially puzzling.

The explanation is that the advertising agencies have crept into politics. The part played in the Republican campaign by Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborne and Young & Rubicam has been much mentioned. It is not so generally known, but that the Democrats also used younger advertising executives with Roosevelt sympathies—one group secretly recruited from Young & Rubicam's own offices. The advertising experts were apparently responsible for the effort to sell the contending candidates as it is customary to sell complexion soaps, cigarettes and deodorants, by signed testimonials, snappy advertising patter in the newspapers, and elaborate radio entertainment.

MRS. VAN RENSSLAER SMITH Considering the gravity of the issues involved, and the terrifying circumstances in which the election was held, the introduction of the common techniques of advertising salesmanship into the campaign was not pleasant to any thinking man. But, it must be admitted, often extremely funny and extremely entertaining.

The competition for names was as hot as when two nationally-sold competing products, managed by the most high-pressure admen, get into a battle for testimonials. Of course, there were no pictures in the papers of the lovely Mrs. Van Rensselaer Smith, with captions, "Mrs. Smith, descendant of New York's patrons, always votes for Roosevelt." She finds it makes her guests far angrier after dinner, but it went almost as far. The Republicans got up a writers-for-Willkie committee with an imposing roster of the literary great. The Democrats countered with an even more striking list of Roosevelt-minded literateurs.

As the Republican writers, generally speaking, were elder statesmen of literature, Robert Emmet Sherwood proposed that the Democratic group be called "contemporary writers for Roosevelt." The Democrats were first in the Hollywood field, and were so anxious to do well in it that the President himself personally requested more than one shining star to place his name on the Roosevelt list. The Republicans, although troubled with the same difficulty in finding really up-to-date names, met the Democratic challenge with a complete list of stars and near-stars of their own.

PUTTING CANDIDATES IN THEIR PLACES The Democrats thought they had Joe Louis nailed down, but some quick work behind the scenes brought the brown bomber out on the Republican side. Thus the Democrats were forced to answer, rather hastily, with Marian Anderson. Bill Robinson, tap dancer, and Walter Huston sang for the third time, and George M. Cohan even wrote a new song for the occasion. On the other side, Miss Edna Saint Vincent Millay composed an ode on Willkie, and Walter O'Keefe chanted Walt Disney's little masterpiece, "Heigh-Ho, It's Off to Work We Go," in the same noble cause.

What is commonly called the "woman's angle" was added to the campaign by the magnificent contest between Miss Dorothy Thompson and Miss Clare Boothe. The two ladies went at it hot and heavy, making it almost a major issue that Miss Boothe had her hair done by Charles of the Ritz, and that Miss Thompson had once been permitted to fire a cannon in the Maginot line. Nor were singers, writers, dancers, fighters and champions of womanhood the only novel recruits in the great vote chase. The Republicans put on an unemployed actor in the role of a youth, just turned 21, in need of a job to get married on, and voting for Willkie in hope of the job. And the Democrats offered hot swing, by Maestro Benny Goodman, as their special, final contribution to the electoral controversy.

Most of their above-named features were to be heard on the air on the last night of the campaign in long radio shows so elaborately planned for entertainment that the speeches of the candidates and their more serious supporters sounded as out of place as the commercial plugs in the middle of the popular airwaves. If this kind of thing goes on, four years from now the national committees will be using before and after pictures of doubting voters, who suffered from sour stomachs, falling hair and social unpopularity until they saw or heard or shook hands with the Democratic or Republican nominee.

A Good Story.

There is an exceptionally well-told short story in the current issue of The Saturday Post, in case you haven't noticed it.

It is titled "Snow Goose," by Paul Gallico, and is about the evacuation of British troops from the sands of Dunkerque. Just a tip for a good half hour's reading.

Sunset

There is something of rare beauty in the scene from this office window when the sun is setting, as now, in the late afternoon.

There is the wall of a three-story building, far off over the railroad tracks, that, with its windows, catches the gleam of gold and it shines like a rectangle of light against the growing gloom around it. There are two or three tanks, atop buildings, coated with aluminum, that stand like bright sentinels with the sunshine on one side.

And, around and over them all is the haze of dark smoke from the railroad yards, punctuated here and there with its own gleam from the sun.

All shades of pastel coloring may be found in the evening sky and the entire picture is one of beauty, despite the industrial smoke and smut that envelops.

Smart Girl.

Heard a good story—Seems the night clerk at a certain well-known hotel in New York got rather worried about the behavior of one of the younger feminine guests. He explained to the manager that he thought the young lady in question was entertaining masculine guests in her room at hours a little too near midnight, or after, for propriety. The manager finally gave in to the clerk's importunities and authorized him to investigate.

So the clerk telephoned the young lady's room that night. "Madame," he queried, "when she answered the phone, 'Is there a gentleman in your room?'" "I don't know," she answered promptly and brightly. "Hold the phone. I'll ask him."

Expecting

Erudite Article. As I write this Harold Martin is sitting right behind me giving close study to a volume of my encyclopedia. He came in some 15 minutes ago, apologized for disturbing and requested use of said encyclopedia. I don't know what his subject is, but I think the volume is that one entitled "Trance to Venial Sin."

But I'm going to scan the pages of tomorrow's Constitution with careful eye, expecting to read a most erudite Martin contribution. Something should come out of the long minutes he's pored over the volume of comprehensive knowledge.

You can't imagine how useful an encyclopedia is in a newspaper office. Almost as valuable as the dictionary.

It provides deep and exhaustive information on most any subject and many a time when you marvel at the casual sort of knowledge displayed by some reporter or editor, the truth is he is only rewriting a few paragraphs from the encyclopedia.

It is useful too as a source of ideas.

On a number of occasions, when short of an idea for this column, you do run short, you know, when it has to be filled seven days a week, 52 weeks a year—the good old encyclo has come to the rescue.

All you have to do is approach the shelves, stick out a hand at random, and pull down a volume. You then close your eyes, open said volume where it will and stab down a finger.

Whatever subject you have hit should provide sufficient information and inspiration to fill the column for the day.

In the final decision of the case, on writing until the requisite number of words are on paper, once you've gotten an idea—an idea—with which to start.

For instance, today. The latter half of this column can be credited only to the encyclopedia, now can it?

And that's that.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Tuesday, November 9, 1915: "Bright and early Monday morning Atlanta began donning a festive holiday raiment to welcome the hosts of visitors to the Georgia Harvest Festival."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Sunday, November 9, 1890: "The Prince of Wales will join General Booth, of the Salvation Army, in trying to improve the condition of the outcast poor of England. It is a work fit for a Prince."

Student Movies Urged

Student movie houses showing "culture" films are proposed by the Shochiku Theatrical Company of Tokyo, Japan, now that student films are barred from regular moving picture theaters by government order. The new type theaters are being planned at first for only the largest cities, such as Tokyo, Osaka, Kobe and Nagoya. Newsreels would be a feature. All films would be approved by the education minister.

Income Tax On Ransom

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The United States Board of Tax Appeals handed down a decision on October 1 in which the queer bureau assumed some of the authority of a criminal court by way of claiming for the Federal Treasury an income tax, plus appropriate penalties, on ransom paid for the release of a kidnapped citizen. The man thus found guilty by the Board of Tax Appeals of kidnapping never was prosecuted for the crime. The board is supposed to be as neutral as a court, but actually it occupies the position of a collection agency and has an interest in cases which come before it.

The defendant in this case was Murray Humphreys, a well-known Chicago racketeer of the Al Capone era and type, who, since repeal, has muddled way into the dairy business in Chicago, where not a few well-known bigwigs have retired to more or less conventional commerce. Humphreys was one of many gangsters indicted in the cleanup of Chicago, which was accomplished by the intelligence unit of the Treasury but which often has been erroneously credited to the FBI. He had been a bootlegger and a power in the dry-cleaning racket and enjoyed, in the peculiar social scale of Chicago, a substantial reputation as a hoodlum.

Indicted in June, 1933, he fled to Mexico and returned in October, 1934, to plead guilty and receive a sentence of 18 months in prison plus a fine of $5,000. He served 14 months, receiving the usual discount for polite behavior.

Story of Kidnaping

The criminal aspects of the tax evasion having been concluded, the government still maintained its claim for the unpaid taxes and penalties. The unreported income included money received from the dry-cleaning racket and $50,000 paid for the release of Robert G. Fitchie, president of the Chicago Milk Wagon Drivers' Union—a historic case. Fitchie, then 74 years old, was kidnaped on December 21, 1931, and was released two days later, after Steve C. Sumner, the secretary-treasurer of the union, also an old man, had left $50,000 on the seat of a parked car. Sumner later identified Humphreys as one of the men who took the $50,000 from the car and further said he recognized Humphreys' voice as the one which, in several telephone conversations, negotiated the ransom.

In reaching its verdict of guilty of kidnaping against Humphreys the Board of Tax Appeals took into consideration evidence shown by Humphreys' bank accounts and gave weight to the testimony of Sumner against Humphreys' claim that the kidnaping was a fake. In this connection it should be noted that the nature of many labor unions is such that it would not be thought improper of a union official to dip into the treasury to ransom a kidnaped brother official. This obviously invited officials to go absent for a few days and to help themselves to the members' money in amounts to be reported as ransom payments.

The Board of Tax Appeals decided that Sumner was an honest witness and said, "We are convinced that his identification of petitioner (Humphreys) as the man who took the $50,000 from the automobile is correct."

Illegal Income

It often has been urged that in the cases of criminals who report income obtained by illegal methods the rate of tax should be much higher than that provided for legal income. Court decisions have been discouraging, however, on the ground that this would constitute an abuse of the intention of the income tax amendment and the revenue act. The intention is to tax income, not to punish crime, and the consequence of all this is that the income of a criminal who admits his criminality in his return is taxable at the same rate as that of an honest, useful citizen.

In the final decision of the case the United States government becomes the major beneficiary of a criminal act whose victim, whether Fitchie or the union treasury, has no financial redress. The government takes its regular cut of the $50,000 plus a penalty of 50 per cent of that tax for Humphreys' failure to declare and pay, but not as a penalty for the actual kidnaping. By the government's own decision it is helping itself to money extorted from an innocent party. The Treasury has no intention—in fact, no right—to return such money to the original victim.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

ROAD TO MANDALAY Just the other day a gentleman asked, "Did you ever think that the Burma road really is Rudyard Kipling's 'Road to Mandalay'?" Well, sir, you would have thought he was referring back to the Friday afternoon meetings of the Daniel Webster Literary Society at the McCallie school. Whenever a member of the program was ill or absent, the officials always would sigh resignedly and say, "Well, we can get HIM to debate or declaim something by Kipling." They meant me and "The Road to Mandalay" was my youthful favorite.

The Burma road of today is Kipling's famous road. He even got Burma into it: "By the old Moulemein pagoda, lookin' eastward to the sea. There's a Burma girl a-settin' and I know she thinks of me. For the wind is in the palm trees and the temple bells they say, 'Come you back, you British soldier, come you back to Mandalay.'"

It will be recalled that, after lamenting the fact the English paving stones were gritty and the women beefy-face and grubby, the English Tommy sounds off in the closing lines:

"Ship me somewhere east of Suez, where the best is like the worst, Where there ain't no Ten Commandments and a man can raise a thirst, For the temple bells are calling and 'tis there that I would be, By the old Moulemein pagoda looking lazy at the sea . . ."

The Geographic is out with an article about the road. It is new, of course. It wasn't always there. And the authors are factual enough to say that Mr. Kipling never traveled its present route. He did a trip by steamer and, looking from the deck, dreamed it as he saw "the dawn come up like thunder out of China 'cross the bay."

It isn't so peaceful now. And the Burma girls are no longer as sweet an innocent as they were when the English Tommy was lamenting his absence. Truck drivers, gasoline, the road and the war have done something to the whole territory and its people. The old peaceful days of empire, when a squad of British soldiers with machineguns could murder all the counterparts of "Fuzzy Wuzzy" and his spears, are no more. The "Road to Mandalay" is the Burma road, and the dawn comes up with the thunder of guns across the bay.

"THERE AIN'T NO BUSES RUNNIN'" Mr. Kipling's "Tommy" lamented also, "There ain't no buses running from Rangoon to Mandalay."

Today there is a railroad. The Burma road was built to connect with this railroad. The railroad runs from Rangoon to Mandalay.

The Burma road runs from Mandalay to Kunming, capital of China's southwesternmost province. It really is interesting to check it on the map. It is 700 miles in length and much of it is subject to slides and washouts. The story of its building is a most fantastic and heroic one.

The Chinese lacked equipment to build it. We always wonder today at the tremendous feats accomplished by hand-power in the old days, such as the Pyramids in Egypt or those in Mexico. The Chinese accomplishment is even more remarkable.

The Chinese had this job to do and they had one modern supply—dynamite. The 700 miles run through swamps, 300 of its miles are over mountains where the temperature was near freezing.

Mexico's magnificent International highway from Laredo to Mexico City, about 760 miles, required 10 years to build.

The Chinese had plenty of man power. They put 200,000 coolies to work in NINE MONTHS—JUST NINE—the road was completed. There was one coolie for every three yards of roadway. It is, of course, unproved. The Mexican highway is a great road, perfect in every detail. The Chinese road is narrow in spots and has its share of ruts. But it is, reports say, serviceable. It can take the traffic of trucks.

Now I am ready to believe what Plutarch said about the army of Xerxes, the Persian king whom the Greeks defeated. His army was so large that when they came to a small river they just drank it dry and marched on across.

ENGLAND'S PLIGHT Meanwhile, England's plight seems to be more desperate than at any time since the war began. The release yesterday of 12,000 American planes, the first of which are coming off the lines, is an indication of the desperate plight.

Winston Churchill, whose strength lies in his truth, has admitted the shipping lines are in a critical condition. These ships must keep moving and they must reach England. Without them the people will starve and the guns will go idle.

Germany, now that Italy is in and England's great fleet must be stretched thin across the North sea, the Atlantic and the Mediterranean, and, even, in the Pacific, is busy at sea. At least two raiders of the Graf Spee class are at large and, with the help of submarines, are doing tremendous damage to British shipping.

This country is going to be called on for more destroyers, more supplies, and, eventually, some of our merchant ships, before this war is done. It will take all the food and all the material aid this country can supply to bring England through. It need not take any of our soldiers.

The sale of our planes is not a mistake. We can keep turning them out, and the longer England can keep defending herself the more Germany will lose.

The Burma road is a part of the big show.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My Dear Louise:

When the failure calls successful people lucky or attributes their success to trickery, he is only trying to find an alibi for himself; but when you kids get the idea that money or fame is required to make anybody popular, you are cultivating a foolish cynicism that will make trouble for you.

I had that idea years ago. I was a green and foot-loose kid, eager to see the country in a hurry. When I had worked in one town for six months or so, I would hunt through the want ads in a trade journal and pick a job distant enough to promise variety.

I discovered that towns differ, as people do, in character, habits and temperament; but all were alike in one particular. The little people believed the big people got that way unfairly.

Everywhere I was told: "It's money that makes the Joneses popular. They

Mr. Harris Takes A Walk—and Comes Back.

My friends Julian Harris and Hunt Clements have resumed control of the editorial page of the Chattanooga Times after a vacation on account of politics.

Mr. Harris is an editorial writer but also a good deal more. He is assumed to direct the editorial policies of the Times, under the owners and publishers. The Ochs family also owns and publishes the New York Times.

The Chattanooga paper came out for Willie. Julian Harris, who won a Pulitzer prize while running the Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer for a fearless editorial against the Ku Klux and who is a son of the famous Uncle Remus, is a gentleman of strong will and the courage of his convictions.

He couldn't reconcile it with his views to pull for Willie. He recognized the right of the owner to back Willie if he thought that way, so there was no quarrel. Julian and his assistant, Mr. Clement, merely retired from the editorial and policy-making department of the paper until after the election. Next day they went back on the job, with everybody in good humor.

The situation brought up quite a discussion among newspaper men. A group of us argued over it a short time ago as to whether an editorial writer should write editorials "dictated" by the boss even though he personally had the opposite point of view.

It was pretty well agreed that the owner of a newspaper property has the right to direct its policies; that an editorial writer is an expert engaged to interpret those policies; and that unless some great moral—not political—issue was involved it is his duty to do the job the best he knows how. His is merely the voice of the owner.

But we agreed that Julian was right, because he is more than merely a voice. He is by no means anonymous. The Times' opinions were largely accepted as his opinions. So he retired to the sidelines.

Columns Are Different.

I've written many an editorial about national, state and local affairs—not for this paper where it isn't my job, but for others where I've worked—with which I did not agree. It was the paper's opinion, not necessarily mine.

But a signed column is different. None of my superiors ever suggested I write something under my own by-line with which I didn't agree. Nor to tone down a signed review of a play or a motion picture.

That is one reason, I think, where signed columns on national affairs—such as our Alsop-Kintner column—are so popular with publishers and readers alike. Because intelligent folk really do like to hear both sides of a question. I am sure Alsop-Kintner is printed as in those of the Democratic faith. I am pretty sure, also, that The Constitution has by no means agreed with all of Westbrook Pegler's always interesting attacks on one person or another. But that's no reason for not printing them. They're his own views.

The time has passed when a newspaper—a real newspaper, not a campaign sheet—tries to cram one-sided propaganda down its readers' throats. The modern liberal idea is to only plain honesty but sound business. The paper which insisted on telling its readers how to think and how not to think would sooner or later find itself with very few readers to tell anything.

Plays to a Loss.

United States Marine Band is a famous organization. John Philip Sousa used to conduct it. It's tops. For several years it has made a concert tour—its members on furlough without pay. All they wanted were expenses.

The Marine Band played in Lanett, Ala., to more than 200 persons, according to the West Point News. Loss of $1,000 to local guarantors. How come? Do people want good music or don't they? If I knew the answer to that, I could get rich.

Maybe it was the United States Navy Band—a different outfit—which is touring the country. But the West Point paper said "Marine." Anyway, the point is the same.

Bulletin says more than 175,000 persons have visited this year the recreational areas in the Chattahoochee National Forest. Lake Winfield Scott, topping the list with 44,390 visitors.

Great thing, these national forests! Natural beauties guarded. Timber protected. Roads built. Lakes created. All to make playgrounds for America.

They're wide open to the public—with the hope visitors will be careful of matches and cigarette stumps. Costs money to fight forest fires.

Atlanta is fortunate in its lot.

LEWIS NOT TO BLAME IN SIT-DOWN STRIKES

Editor, Constitution: The factual inaccuracy of charging John L. Lewis with initiating and ordering the sit-down strike appears so frequently on the editorial page of The Constitution that I am constrained to call your attention to the error.

There is not a scintilla of evidence that Mr. Lewis authorized a single sit-down strike when the wave of such episodes swept the country a few years ago, involving both CIO and A. F. of L. unions. When, in his own union, a small group of mine workers staged a sit-down, Mr. Lewis ordered the men to stop the strike and return to work under the terms of the contract with coal operators, or be discharged from the union—they immediately went back to work.

The sit-downs in the automobile industry were spontaneous outbursts on the part of men who had been subjected to every known form of industrial spying and warfare on the part of management seeking to destroy the union. The automobile union is an autonomous body—Mr. Lewis had no power to order the strikes or to stop them. He offered his services in negotiation, but the management refused to meet him or other union men. Philip Murray, vice president of the CIO and of the Mine Workers' Organization Committee, has aptly summarized the cause of sit-down strikes and placed the blame where it belongs in a recent article in the Virginia Quarterly Review. He writes:

"The character of labor relations is determined, in the main, by the employer. He sets the example; labor, of necessity, follows. The sit-down strike is the outgrowth of employers' strikebreaking policies. In the early days of the NRA, employers in many cases successfully opposed labor by housing and feeding strikebreakers inside their plants."

"The workers had gone on strike, a conventional outdoor picketing strike. They saw their union destroyed, their leaders discharged, and their working conditions unimproved, because their employer had defeated them by housing and feeding strikebreakers. A few years later, in 1936 and 1937, the workers followed their employer's tactics."

"I am not commenting on the merits of the sit-down strike; my purpose is merely to point out its origin. I do this to illustrate that labor's policies are formulated as a consequence of employer policies, and not vice versa."

Jacob Shapiro Seeks Writ in U. S. Court Here.

Jacob (Gurrah) Shapiro, New York racketeer, now serving a term in the Atlanta penitentiary, appeared in United States district court yesterday as Judge E. Marvin Underwood heard arguments on his application for a writ of habeas corpus.

Former business partner of Louis Lepke in organizing the New York fur industry, Shapiro entered the Atlanta penitentiary 32 months ago to serve a five-year sentence imposed by a New York federal court following his conviction of charges of violating anti-trust laws in connection with his activities "protecting" the fur workers.

His attorneys contend he has served his time, as the two counts on which he was sentenced allege the same offense. He was given three years on one count and two on the other. They also state his offense was a misdemeanor, not a felony, and that Shapiro was never liable for a penitentiary sentence.

Lepke, who was indicted on the same charges as Shapiro, won his appeal in a higher court, but later pleaded guilty to the offense. He is now serving time in Leavenworth penitentiary.

2d Army Headquarters Will Go to Tennessee

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—(AP)—The transfer of the headquarters of the Second Army, commanded by Lieutenant General Benjamin L. H. Howley, from Chicago to Memphis, Tenn., was approved today by General George G. Marshall, army chief of staff.

The move was part of the War Department's policy announced last month to separate command of tactical forces in the army from the administrative duties of corps area commanders.

As commanding officer of the Second Army, General Howley is in charge of the field operations and the training of the 27th, 33d and 35th divisions of National Guard troops, the 5th and 6th Divisions of the regular army and the second cavalry division of the regular army, the last named still to be activated.

Naylor succeeds E. R. Albright, of Mobile, Ala.

Ochs Memorial Dedication Set For Tuesday

War Museum, Observation Tower Will Honor Late Publisher.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Many state officials and southern newspaper publishers are expected to attend Tuesday's dedication of a war museum and observation tower as a memorial to a distinguished son, the late Publisher Adolph S. Ochs.

Elmer Davis, radio news commentator who was associated with the publisher of the New York Times and the Chattanooga Times for 25 years, will deliver the dedicatory address. Two other life-long Chattanooga friends, Banker Z. C. Patten and Banker-Writer E. Y. Chapin, also will participate in the ceremonies atop Lookout mountain.

The memorial was erected with funds contributed by Chattanoogaans in recognition of the publisher's civic activities. It stands in Point Park, a federal reservation commemorating the Battle of Lookout Mountain near the Chattanooga-Lookout Mountain National park. The park was conceived through Ochs' vision. He contributed to the fund for purchase of the park's land and led the movement to have the park accepted by congress as an addition to the federal park system.

In the Ochs memorial will be housed a museum containing relics and historical data dealing with the War Between the States near Chattanooga.

Weekend Forecast Is 'Generally Fair'

Georgians may expect generally fair weather and below normal temperatures until Monday or Tuesday when light showers are due, according to the United States Weather Bureau's long-range forecast, made yesterday.

Today, the Weather Bureau said, will be increasingly cloudy with temperatures ranging between 32 and 60 degrees. The drop to 32, if it materializes will be the first time Atlanta thermometers have fallen to the freezing mark since last spring.

Temperatures will rise slightly in Georgia and the Carolinas today and tomorrow, but should be below normal by the end of the period, the long-range prediction stated.

Historical Society Meets Here in '41

Atlanta will be host to the 1941 convention of the Southern Historical Association, an organization made up largely of college personnel, it was announced yesterday at the annual meeting in Charleston, S. C.

Miss Ruth Blair, of the Atlanta Historical Society, said the convention would bring more than 200 delegates to the city. The meeting will be held in November. She said representatives of Georgia Tech, Emory University, Agnes Scott and the Atlanta Historical Society have been seeking the convention for the past four years.

Double-Deck Bridge Links Maine and N. H.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 8.—(AP)—A new interstate, $3,155,000 two-deck bridge, spanning the Piscataqua river between Portsmouth and Kittery, Maine, was opened today at ceremonies attended by the governors of Maine and New Hampshire. The structure, begun in December, 1938, restores direct train service into Maine which was halted in September of last year when the old bridge collapsed.

The lower deck will be used by trains, starting on Sunday. The upper highway is for motor traffic. The bridge is 2,798 feet in length and has five spans, including a 224-foot lift. It is divided into two highways of two lanes each.

The upper highway will be used by cars, starting on Sunday. The upper highway is for motor traffic. The bridge is 2,798 feet in length and has five spans, including a 224-foot lift. It is divided into two highways of two lanes each.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Sunday's lesson, the 6th chapter of Luke, brings us to that much-quoted passage from the words of Jesus, "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise." These words of our Lord have been termed the Golden Rule.

The Golden Rule is one of the many facets in the Sermon on the Mount, delivered primarily to the 12 men chosen by Jesus as His immediate staff of followers, though Matthew and Luke remind us that a multitude of friends heard Him deliver this Magna Charta of the Kingdom of God. He had performed at least two miracles that day, both of which had added to the enmity of Pharisees. The previous night He had spent in prayer on a mountain, probably the Horns of Hattin near Capernaum.

Luke gives only an abridged form of the Sermon on the Mount, in which is emphasized righteousness as expressed in love. Someone has well said that in Matthew's account of the Sermon on the Mount we have direct emphasis given to spirituality, and in Luke's account, charity.

In the Golden Rule, Luke brings us to see that the good heart will love those in need of our help. Luke is the one New Testament writer to give us the incomparable story of the Good Samaritan, and we are further indebted to Luke for the story of the prodigal son.

Luke goes further to establish the idea of the Golden Rule as a matter of prayer—that only in the atmosphere of prayer can we hope to gain the strength by which we can do unto others as we would have them do unto us.

And Luke emphasizes the qualities of meekness and forbearance in showing the true spirit of charity which the Golden Rule implies. Nor would one be able to turn the beggar away, or turn away from the beggar, according to Luke.

It is not enough, according to Luke, to wear the garb of a saint. There must be the true character of love and pity for those about us. Personality is the great value, transcending all other values.

And Luke helps us to understand and believe that the Golden Rule will work—that it worked when Jesus was in the world—that it works today wherever and whenever we have the spirit of the Master.

Here is a lesson which will strengthen every child of God in trying to "do good to them that hate you" and to "bless them that curse you." And if the Golden Rule is brought into the hearts of men today, the sad story of a world at war will be changed into the bright picture of a world doing the will of God.

New Schwob Store Will Open Today

New and modern quarters of the Schwob Clothing Company at Mitchell and Broad streets will be opened today.

The new store replaces one destroyed by fire five months ago. It is a completely new building, is modern throughout and is air-conditioned. Fixtures are modern and the lighting indirect.

Besides the regular line of "Schwob" clothes, the new store includes a tailored-to-order department. This department will specialize in garments for men who are hard to fit.

In preparation for the opening today, employees have been busy all this week stocking the store with the latest line of clothing merchandise.

Opening of the Mitchell street store gives the concern two locations, the other being at 91 Peachtree street.

Department Store Sales Show Gain

Atlanta department store sales for the four weeks ending last Saturday gained nine per cent over the corresponding period last year, the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta reported yesterday. Sales in the Sixth Federal Reserve District showed a three per cent gain for the same period.

Sales in Atlanta for the week ending last Saturday declined 12 per cent from the preceding week and seven per cent from the corresponding week a year ago. District sales the same week were up one per cent over the previous week, but nine per cent below the corresponding week of last year.

Lord Lothian Awarded Order of the Thistle

LONDON, Nov. 8.—(AP)—King George today conferred a knighthood of the Order of the Thistle, one of British most distinguished orders, on the Marquess of Lothian, British ambassador to the United States.

Lord Lothian is now in England on a brief furlough.

Rivers Names Advisors in 86 Draft Areas

80 Per Cent of Members
Are Legionnaires,
Gillen Says.

Advisors to registrants in 86 local draft board areas of Georgia were appointed yesterday by Governor Rivers and will begin their duties as the first of the questionnaires are sent out next week to possible draftees.

According to the selective service program, these advisors will help registrants to fill out the complicated eight-page questionnaires—that determine deferments—and will assist registrants in preparing any appeals which may be necessary.

Major Pat Gillen, draft advisor, pointed out that 80 per cent of the advisory board members were also members of the American Legion.

500 Women Sell Poppies on Streets

Nearly 500 women sold red paper poppies from 7:30 until 5 o'clock in downtown Atlanta yesterday for the Fifth District American Legion Rehabilitation Fund. Late yesterday poppy sales chairman announced that the thousands of Atlanteans had bought the small red flowers which were made by veterans of the first World War now in Georgia hospitals.

Chairmen of poppy sales for the three units of the auxiliary conducting the drive for funds were: Mrs. George L. Baker, of Atlanta, Unit No. 1; Mrs. E. P. James, of the new Gate City Unit No. 72; and Mrs. D. N. Stevens, of the West End Unit. Mrs. R. K. Whiteford is the state department chairman.

The money from the poppy sales is used for needy service men and their families in the district, and each veteran who helped make the flowers is paid

Determined Jackets Are Rated Even Against Kentucky Today

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

No Fooling JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 8.—"Gators Not Fooled by Georgia's Bear Stories," screams a headline in the morning paper.

The story goes on to say that Coach Tom Lieb brands as hokum and alibis the Georgia reports that the Bulldog ace, Frankie Sinkwich, is apt not to play.

Sinkwich, of course, is hurt. Georgia didn't take him out of the Auburn game after he set up a quick touchdown to save him for Florida. Somebody ought to tell Coach Lieb about that.

Frankly, Florida doesn't believe Sinkwich is hurt and consequently the 'Gators are drilling as hard as possible to stop him Saturday. And, according to the plan, anybody who runs in his place must suffer the consequences, or vice versa.

It is not hokum that Florida fans will turn out en masse for the game. Coach Lieb has got a hold on Florida's doubting Thomases and they have a feeling the 'Gators might fool Georgia.

This is the game the 'Gators want. And it so happens that the club is just getting around to smoothing the offense. A lot of razzle dazzle has been inserted.

Lieb is, to speak in the vernacular, nobody's fool. He was a great assistant to Knute Rockne, and he didn't do so bad as a head coach at Loyola, of Los Angeles.

It was tough starting out in September to teach a team a brand-new system. Florida has been schooled in the Pitt system, even in spring training. Lieb took over in September and installed the Notre Dame.

Against Mississippi State, in the opening game, Florida was assessed 90 yards in penalties—five yards at a crack—for illegal shift or else backfield in motion. The boys hadn't mastered their assignments. They've been improving as they've gone along.

The 'Gators gave Maryland a good trimming and held Tennessee to a narrow victory. And there has been a week of rest leading up to the Georgia game on the morrow.

This is, without question, the game the 'Gators want.

New Feeling Sam Butz, who conducts a palladium of the public weal for the Jax Times-Union, cleverly headed off, And Butz, is not a natural-born optimist. And turn of events at Florida U. over the years hasn't helped any. And yet Sam has caught the new feeling.

Butz writes— "In two weeks confidence in the University of Florida football team has so increased that fans are wondering if the 'Gators have a chance to beat Georgia here Saturday, instead of debating over the number of points Bulldog supporters should spot.

"Of course, the fine showing against Tennessee, coming after a satisfactory victory over Maryland, gave the Florida eleven the better rating with the public. But it is to be hoped that the enthusiasts don't relinquish all hold on their better judgment and venture into bets that will cause them financial loss and mental anguish.

"There is absolutely no reason to expect a Florida victory, despite a close game with Tennessee. Looking back to last year, you'll remember that Georgia won, 6 to 2, over the 'Gators. Georgia has a much better team than it had a year ago; it's doubtful if the 'Gators, still feeling the loss of two regular tackles and the lack of a sparkplug back, are quite as good."

Butz makes a good point on gambling. That appears to have been one of the reasons why there has been so much acrimony over so-called upsets of Florida teams in the past.

The 'Gators have got hold of another fine coach. They had Charley Bachman and turned him out. Now they have Tom Lieb. And for the sake of saving their face, if nothing else, Florida alumni should settle down.

If Georgia wins it will be only what Georgia is supposed to do. No poll, including the Gallup, would favor Florida tomorrow.

Possibilities Georgia could lose to Florida and Georgia Tech also could lose to Kentucky. Inspired teams are tough to get along with.

No one has been able to understand what has happened at Kentucky. The Wildcats have a wealth of brilliant talent. Maybe it's "senioritis." They have a wealth of seniors, too.

Senior teams can play great football when fired up. So far the Wildcats haven't reached a peak. In your old Kentucky home they're saying Saturday's the day.

It's not really a fair test, in view of Tech's crippled condition. The Wildcats, with a vast store of

Tampa Routs Petrels, 52-0, On Long Run

Oglethorpe Yields Two Touchdowns in Each Quarter.

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 8.—(P)—University of Tampa's Spartans celebrated their eighth homecoming tonight by crushing the Oglethorpe Petrels, 52 to 0.

The Spartans, paced by Champ Williams, scored two touchdowns in each quarter and converted four points after.

Oglethorpe never made a serious threat. The nearest they got to Tampa's goal line in the first half was the 47-yard line. In the final period, Oglethorpe got the ball on Tampa's 36 when Dick Schleicher got off a bad kick in the strong wind from his 23. But on the first play from scrimmage the Birds fumbled and Tampa University recovered.

One other time in the second half Oglethorpe got a few yards past midfield.

18 FIRST DOWNS. Tampa made 18 first downs to six for the visitors.

Tampa's first score came early in the first quarter when Tampa recovered a fumble on the Oglethorpe 15 and drove across in four plays with Howard Beynon making the touchdown.

A few minutes later, Tampa got the ball on Oglethorpe's 44 after a short kick, and drove to a touchdown with John Comparato going across from the 20.

Early in the second quarter, Paul McCloskey recovered a fumble on Oglethorpe's 22 from where Williams raced for a touchdown. But the scoring play was called back on a penalty.

Two plays later Oglethorpe was penalized to the seven from where Williams scored. Again the point after failed.

Marvin Levin scored for Tampa late in the quarter after Bill Sher had intercepted a pass on Oglethorpe's 48. Levin went across after five plays.

This time McCloskey made the extra point and Tampa led, 25-0, at half time.

77-YARD RUN. In the third quarter Beynon intercepted a long pass on Tampa's 23 from where Williams raced 77 yards on the first play from scrimmage for a touchdown. A few minutes later Williams ran for a score from the five which was called back and Tampa penalized. Williams then went across again, this time to count and McCloskey kicked the extra point.

In the final period, Frank Straner took an Oglethorpe kick and ran 73 yards to score as Ken Stout blocked out a would-be tackler on Oglethorpe's 40-yard line.

Pug Reed recovered a fumble on Tampa's 42 late in the final quarter and the Spartans went 58 yards for the final touchdown.

MARIST'S BEES WIN. Everett Jones scored both touchdowns yesterday as Marist's B team defeated North Fulton at the losers' field, 12 to 0. Jim May-er also starred for Marist.

Rollins Rolls Miami, 7 to 0

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 8.—(P)—The tricky Rollins College football team swept 76 yards for a first-period touchdown and staved off three late Miami surges tonight to whip the Hurricanes, 7 to 0, before a crowd of 15,924.

THE ENGINEER SPARK—Here is little Johnny Bosch, brilliant Tech tailback, who is "all up in the air" about the Jackets' meeting with Kentucky in Louisville today.

If Tech is to win this one, this little man who is definitely there likely will play a big part, as always. He passes. He punts. He runs, and whatever else have you.

Smithies Bow To Anderson In 21-19 Upset

Tech High Rally Falls Short and Two Goal Tries Miss.

ANDERSON, S. C., Nov. 8.—(P)—Anderson High school, led by "Red" McCown, scored in the second and third periods tonight to nose out Tech High, of Atlanta, 21 to 19.

The Atlanta Smithies jumped into an early lead when Marcus McWhorter swept around end for a touchdown in the first quarter following a drive from the Anderson 40. Anderson came back in the second period to twice cross the Tech High goal, McGown and Manley scoring touchdowns.

McGown scored for the South Carolinians from the one-foot line in the third period following a penalty on Tech for roughness. Jack Pounds broke loose midway in the quarter and raced 30 yards through the Anderson line for a touchdown.

The final Tech score came in the fourth quarter when Pounds went over from the Anderson 7.

N.G.I.C. and S.G.F.A. Champs May Play for N. Georgia Title

Winner of November 29 Clash Would Meet S. G. F. A. Victor for State B Grid Crown

Prep football bigwigs in North Georgia are beating the tom-toms to call a pow-wow between the chiefs of the N. G. I. C. and N. G. F. A. to see if they cannot arrange a grid embroglio between the champions of the two organizations on November 29, the winner to play the S. G. F. A. champions for the state title the first Friday in December.

It is known that North Fulton, with their second straight N. G. I. C. crown practically a certainty, would be receptive to such an arrangement. The reaction of Cedartown, Spalding (Griffin) and Elberton, one of which is almost certain to take down the N. G. F. A. title, is unknown.

Two years ago Decatur High, then N. G. I. C. champions, and Albany, S. G. F. A. winner, could not get together for a tilt for the state B title because the South Georgia group insisted on a play-off between the two top teams in the N. G. I. C. to determine the championship of that organization. (That is the way they determine the title in the S. G. F. A. each year.) The N. G. I. C. allegedly refused. There was no game.

Last year, partly as a result of this situation, the N. G. F. A. was organized, with the winner, Athens, being drubbed by Albany in the play-off game. Many did not take the Albany claim of a state B title seriously since North Fulton, winner of the N. G. I. C. crown, was unbeaten with an outfit reputed to be one of the strongest in the annals of N. G. I. C. play. Athens, a member of both groups, was N. G. F. A. titlist but had lost out in the N. G. I. C.

Now officials are hoping all differences between the three groups can be ironed out so the play-off between the two North Georgia organizations can become an annual affair with the victor meeting the South Georgia play-off winner—this year it looks like the Tifton Blue Devils—for the state crown.

North Fulton Wallops Lee For 21st, 21-7

Bulldogs Strengthen Hold on N.G.I.C. Title at Thomaston.

THOMASTON, Ga., Nov. 8.—North Fulton's Bulldogs won their 21st straight victory and moved another notch toward a second successive N. G. I. C. championship tonight with a 21-7 victory over the R. E. Lee Rebels.

The Atlanta team scored in the first, third and fourth quarters, rallying after the Rebels tied the score at 7-all in the second period. Creed Taylor, fleet halfback, scored one Bulldog touchdown and threw a pass to End Newton for another. Lustrat Coleman ran for the opening score. Taylor's touchdown run was for 30 yards.

Lee scored when E. Thompson ran 12 yards on an end-around after a 52-yard sprint by Ed Turner.

Tackle Slaten dropped kicked all three of North Fulton's extra points. The Bulldogs have only LaGrange blocking their path to the 1940 title.

North-South Game Has Player Limit

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—It's a good thing for the south that there is some sort of limit on how many players from one school can take part in the annual North-South football game here New Year's Day.

Otherwise, Carl Snively, one of the northern coaches, might bring his entire undefeated Cornell lineup. The northern and southern teams are selected from senior stars. In each of its games so far Cornell has started 11 seniors, but Snively has settled for four of his boys New Year's Day.

Georgia and Florida Clash Before Record Crowd of 20,000

Auburn Plays Clemson In Home-Coming Game

Comeback Elevens Hook Up Before 13,000 as Plainsmen Hope To Celebrate.

By AL SHARP.

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 8.—Auburn and Clemson, both eager to hit the comeback trail after tough losses, will meet here tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock before a home-coming crowd of about 13,000 fans.

The Loveliest Village of the Plain, prettied up with decorations for the return of graduates, will be the scene of gala festivities, including the annual meeting of Auburn alumni at 11 o'clock in the morning. Alumni President George Mattison, of Birmingham, will preside at the meeting, and Roy Moore will make the principal address.

Selection of the most outstanding player in the game, maneuverers by Clemson's crack drill platoon and the doings of Miss Home-Coming and her court were listed as added attractions.

The football game, still rating top billing on the long program of events, is expected to produce enough fireworks to keep fans bobbing up and down. Auburn is a slight favorite.

CLEMSON BEATEN ONCE. Clemson has lost only one game, and that last weekend to Tulane, and the Tigers are ranked as a top-southern outfit in spite of that defeat. The Plainsmen, who have lost to S. M. U. and Georgia and tied Mississippi State, are far from being out of the running, their schedule being what it is.

One feature of the game should be a punting duel, if past performances may be taken for their face value. In Captain Dick McGowan, Auburn boasts one of the finest booters in the nation, and Carl Happer, Ty Irby, Clarence Harkins and Monk Gafford back him up with powerful toes.

PUNT AVERAGE 42.41. The Plainsmen have a mark of 42.41 yards to the record of 41.59, compiled by Chippy Maness, Jim Parker, Booty Payne and Sid Tinsley, of the South Carolina squad.

Auburn sophomores will hold the key to success tomorrow, five of them rating starting posts along with four seniors and two juniors. On the other hand, Clemson will depend on veterans, with eight seniors and three juniors ready to go.

'Gators Seek To Pull Upset On Bulldogs

Sinkwich Below Form as Athens Team Faces Test.

By JACK TROY.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 8. Georgia and Florida are due to play before a record football crowd in municipal stadium tomorrow.

Cheered by the 'Gators' showing against Maryland and Tennessee, followers sense a chance for an upset and will pack the stadium. More than 20,000 folks will see the game.

The last decade hasn't been so good for Florida in the football relations with Georgia. There has been only one win and one tie.

But the 'Gators are under a new coach, now, and followers figure they'll start anew with tomorrow's game, which begins at 1:30, Atlanta time.

PSYCHOLOGY PLUS. Coach Tom Lieb, former assistant to Knute Rockne, has used all the psychology he could. John Pimbo, a Jacksonville boy and a fine end, is to be acting captain. Don Scott, another Jacksonville boy who scored on Georgia last year, is only a lowly sub. But Don is being given Dale Carnegie treatment in the press.

Georgia may be hard pressed to win. Frankie Sinkwich is still hurt and a lot depends on how far Heyward Allen, the mighty mite, can go.

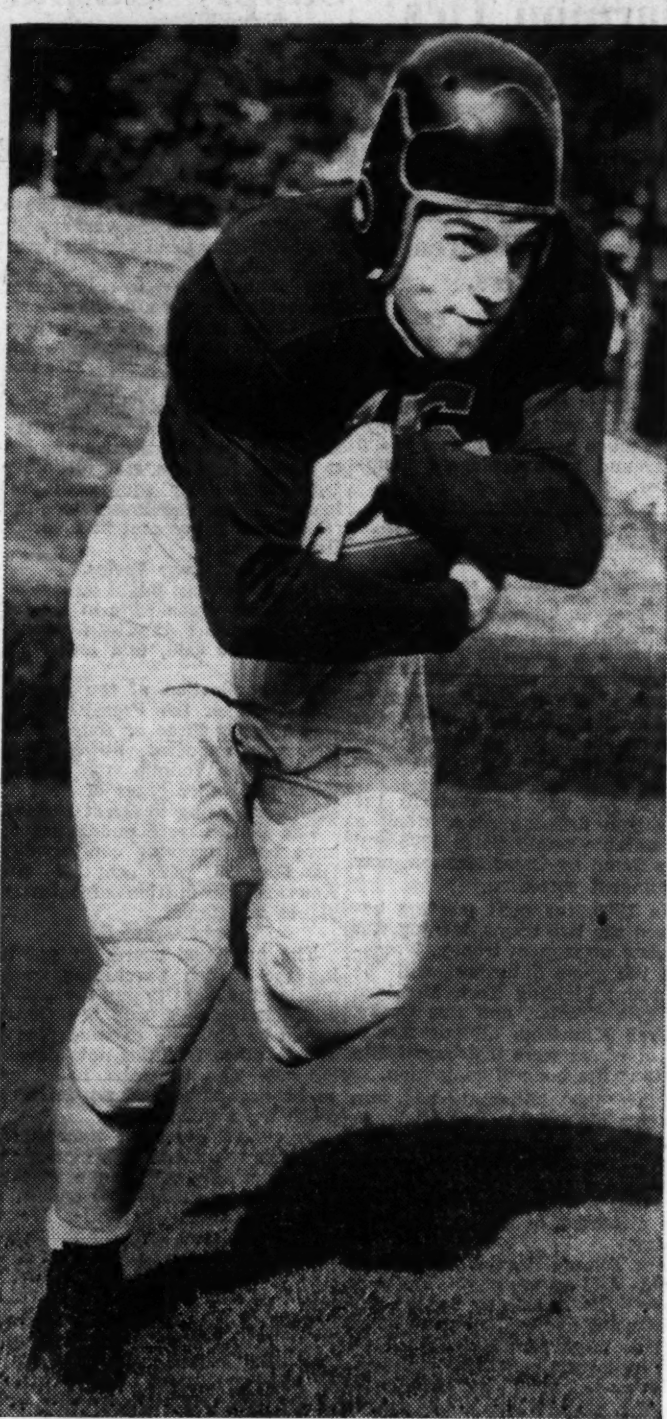

The Bulldogs may suffer a slight letdown following a tough game last week with Auburn. Florida had no game last week.

Still and all, the Bulldogs will enter the game as prime favorites, and it would be a stunning upset should Florida win. The 'Gators stunned Boston College last year in the Eagles' own backyard.

AERIAL SHOW SEEN. The 'Gators have been coming along with their Notre Dame offense and the game may turn into a spectacular aerial show. Georgia's Jim Todd and Heyward Allen can fling 'em with Florida's best. With Sinkwich ailing, Georgia may have trouble along the ground. For two years Florida has had a great defense against running plays. Against passes, however, the 'Gators have been only fair.

Georgia has been improving week by week and unless the Bulldogs have a very bad day they'll win by a fair margin. There was less than a touchdown difference last year, the Bulldogs winning, 6 to 2.

Peckinpugh Will Manage Indians Next Year, Paper Says

CLEVELAND, Nov. 8.—(P)—The Cleveland News said today it had been informed by two usually reliable sources that Roger Peckinpugh, once-fired manager of the Cleveland Indians, has been chosen to pilot the 1941 team.

"I hope that's right," Peckinpugh commented. "I know I'm still in the running."

President Alva Bradley, who earlier said a manager would be announced next Tuesday, would not confirm the report. The News quoted him as saying in New York that Peckinpugh was "one of three leading candidates." He named Luke Sewell, present Indian coach, as another, but Sewell has belittled his chances.

"There's something in the wind that prevents my talking about that third man at this time," Bradley observed. Oscar Vitt, the 1940 manager, was fired last month as the outgrowth of last summer's player rebellion.

Peckinpugh managed the Indians five and a half seasons. He was ousted in mid-1933 in favor of Walter Johnson. Under his direction the Redskins won 416 games and lost 402, finishing third, fourth three times and seventh.

Unbeaten Rome Team Claims Mid-South Championship.

ROME, Ga., Nov. 8.—Darlington clinched its claim on the mid-south title in defeating Tennessee Military Institute, 20-0, here last night and maintained its undefeated, untied record through its seventh contest. Outrushed and held at bay by the Cadets for the first quarter, Rhea Tiger power struck early in the second period when a pass from Mathis to Rhea connected for 26 and a touchdown. Rhea converted. As the same period came to a close Mathis is climaxed a 28-yard drive by plunging the last two yards for a score, and the Tigers led at the half, 13 to 0. Again in the final quarter, Darlington began a 73-yard march that took nine plays to make the distance to the goal. Mathis bucking the last 6. Again Rhea converted.

Montooth, Cadet backfield ace, starred for the losers. He gained 73 of the 83 yards the Cadets made from rushing, and his punting kept them out of several hot spots.

Cleveland, Cadet center, played stellar defensive ball, as did Liles and Younger. Lamb, Tiger power Tiger guard, was missing from the lineup because of an infected elbow. Rhea and Stringfield played heads-up ball for Darlington, as did Connell and Finch.

Georgia Evening Owls

Beat Western Electric

The Georgia Evening College "Owls" defeated a strong team from the Western Electric Company Thursday night in their opening game of the season, 46-30. Teagle, Hickman and Dillard led the attack for the winners, amassing 13, 11 and 10 points, respectively. Captain Posey and Carswell turned in jam-up jobs on defense. Tinsley was the star for the losers, as well as high-point man of the game with 15 points.

Pin Mashers Of Southeast Roll at Alleys

8th Annual Tourney Opens Today With Big Field.

The eighth annual Southern Individual Bowling Championships will be staged at the downtown Bick's Bowling Center this afternoon and evening, beginning at 2 o'clock, with bowlers from 30 southeastern cities here for the event.

With bowling averages higher than in previous seasons, new tournament records may be established in this contest, which rates the No. 1 spot for individual events in the southeast.

Seven cities already have filed entry, with a total registration of 64 men and women, and 35 more are expected before the opening block of games.

Ellis Simpson, of Charlotte, won the men's division last year with a total of 1,272 in the first 10-game event of the tournament. Simpson is scheduled to defend his title.

Ida Simmons, world champion from Norfolk, won the women's division with a 10-game series of 1,211. Miss Simmons will not bowl this year, however, as the contest is not open to North Carolina and Tennessee bowlers.

Men will have their eyes on the first prize of $150. Other prizes will be distributed, including a big list of awards in the women's division.

Entry will remain open until game time. The entry fees of $3.50 for the women and $6.50 for the men include the cost of the games bowled. No handicaps apply.

Bill Pelot, of Decatur; Mrs. L. W. Kilpatrick, of Atlanta, and Wayne Harper, of Atlanta, entered Friday. Other entries on file include 17 women and 15 men from Atlanta, two men and six women from Charlotte, three men and five women from Macon, one man from East Point, three men and two women from Rome and six men and five women from Columbus.

Choctaws Foe Of Mercer '11 Before Grads

MACON, Ga., Nov. 8.—(P)—A big bonfire and noisy rehearsal of cheers created atmosphere on the Mercer University campus tonight for tomorrow's home-coming activities.

The student body will parade through the downtown section at noon tomorrow. In the column will be the Mercer band, a dozen or more floats entered by campus organizations in competition for Blue Key fraternity cups, and the student body.

At 1 p. m. alumni will hold a luncheon in the university dining hall and T. Baldwin Martin, Macon attorney who is head of the Alumni Association, and President Spright Dowell of the university will make short speeches.

Highlight of the home-coming day will be the football game in Centennial stadium near the Mercer campus between the Bears and Mississippi College.

THE SPORTLIGHT

BY GRANTLAND RICE

THE UNBREAKABLES

These are the worth of the world—the pride of the race. These who have taken their blastings—blown from the track, These who have faltered and fallen—wrecked by the pace, These who have come to their feet and have dared to storm back.

All the Unbreakables—struck by the hammers of Fate—Buttered and flung to the dust, dizzy and dazed from the start—Wiping the blood from their mouths, seeking the road to the gate, Open only to seekers who carry red blood in the heart.

What can we learn from the winners? Give me the ones in defeat, Who come from the blood and the rosin, ready to make it a fight, Those who can come up swinging—those who are ready to meet What fate—not what men have to offer—in the battle of heart and of might.

THE ROUGHER GOING

There are a number of soft touches on this week's list, but there are also a number of thorns in Saturday's rose garden of football when it comes to correct nominations.

The tougher ones include Michigan and Minnesota, Stanford and Washington, Tulane and Alabama, Texas A. and M. and S. M. U., Notre Dame and Navy, Fordham, Purdue, Columbia and Wisconsin, Georgia Tech and Kentucky, Auburn and Clemson. These are games that can ride either way with the breaks.

The softer spots should include Penn - Harvard, Cornell-Yale, Princeton-Dartmouth, Pittsburgh-Carnegie Tech, to mention only a few. Not to forget the Notre Dame party was supposed to be the softest spot of all.

One highlight will be the Big Nine invasion of New York by Purdue and Wisconsin, which take on Fordham and Columbia. With Navy and Notre Dame, they make Saturday a lusty intersectional east-west day.

The south is packed with trouble—Clemson-Auburn, Alabama-Tulane and Georgia Tech-Kentucky heading the list. The first two games mentioned are full of snarls and tangles on the 50-50 side.

The Roundup Michigan-Minnesota at Minneapolis—The most decisive game yet played for the Big Nine toga. Two of the best, Minnesota, playing at home, looks to have the better line and better reserve power. Harmon will be something to stop. So will Franck and Smith. The edge to Minnesota. But only the edge.

Notre Dame-Navy at Baltimore.—We'll all know more about Notre Dame after this contest. Navy is one of the best—a first-class test. Just how good is Notre Dame? The Army game shattered a flock of illusions. Was it just an off-day for Notre Dame, in spite of Army's magnificent fight? One more chance for Notre Dame with superior forces.

Stanford-Washington at Palo Alto.—The fragrant odor of the Rose Bowl encircles this one. The Pacific Coast standouts. Two good lines, two exceptionally good backfields. Standlee vs. McAdams. Lose to a toss-up, but the tip to Washington.

Texas A. and M. S. M. U. at Dallas.—One of the tops. Winner should take over the southwest title. Texas A. and M. has Kimbrough, Thomason and Robnett—three standouts. S. M. U. has Preston Johnston, among others. Texas A. and M. by a thin margin.

Princeton-Dartmouth at Princeton.—The Tiger should start moving again with Allerdice whipping that ball.

Alabama-Tulane at Birmingham.—One of the tougher picks. Both have begun to roll, and both are good. Tulane.

Clemson-Auburn at Auburn.—Another toss-up. Auburn, "loveliest village of the plain," playing at home, will be hard to take. Both have unusual backfield strength. Clemson in a close one.

Columbia-Wisconsin at New York.—Lou Little vs. Harry Stuhldreher with two well-matched teams. A game to be decided by the breaks. Wisconsin.

Fordham-Purdue at New York.—Fordham has a good backfield. Fordham has a better one. Fordham.

Cornell-Yale at New Haven.—Yale will attempt an Army revival. Not much chance. Cornell remains the fastest and the smartest team in the country. Cornell.

Pennsylvania-Harvard at Philadelphia.—Pennsylvania has entirely too much both ways—offense and defense.

Georgia-Florida at Jacksonville.—Florida made a stout showing against Tennessee, but Georgia's sophomores are beginning to learn. Georgia.

Georgia Tech-Kentucky at Louisville.—Injuries have almost wrecked Georgia Tech this fall. This was shown in the last Duke game. Kentucky.

Georgetown and Boston College are much too strong for Maryland and Boston University. The first two are among the country's best.

Villanova-Temple at Philadelphia.—One of the day's best in the way of action. Both are good. The edge to Temple.

Army-Brown at West Point.—Army.

Penn State-Syracuse at Syracuse.—Unbeaten Penn State should take it.

Rutgers-Lafayette at New Brunswick.—Another hard one. Lafayette.

Rice-Arkansas at Fayetteville.—A game for the breaks again. Rice.

Wake Forest-North Carolina State at Raleigh.—Well matched—a tough guess. Rates a draw.

Walter Blasingame Would Succeed Charles S. Pryor

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 8.—(AP) The board of lay activities for the South Georgia Methodist Conference has selected Walter Blasingame, of Moultrie, to be conference lay leader, it was disclosed today. He would succeed Charles S. Pryor, of DeSoto.

The Rev. Reese Griffin, of Macon, was named executive secretary of the board of Christian education of the conference to succeed the Rev. George E. Clary, who will be appointed to a pastorate or district superintendency by the bishop. Mr. Clary has served several years in the education office, which is located at Macon.

Officers elected to the board are: The Rev. L. A. Harrell, president; the Rev. Joseph S. Coyne, vice president; J. Lytle Jones, secretary, and J. Guy Jackson, treasurer.

G. O. P. Leader In Florida Dies Of Heart Attack

John F. Walter Withdrew From 1940 gubernatorial Race.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Nov. 8.—(AP) John F. Walter, 1940 Republican nominee for governor who withdrew before the election, died of a heart attack here early tonight. He was 62 years old.

Walter, a retired banker, was nominated by the Republican state executive committee last spring. Together with several other G. O. P. nominees, he withdrew from the race several weeks ago to concentrate his efforts toward carrying the state for Wendell Willkie for President.

He had been active in Republican politics since coming here in 1920 from Pennsylvania, where he was born. Party associates said he had served a term as representative in congress from Pennsylvania.

The conference reversed its action at a short age and decided to continue holding its annual meeting in November instead of changing to the summer.

The body also requested the bishop to limit the service of district superintendents to four consecutive years.

Business sessions occupied the lay leaders and clergymen today. Bishop Arthur Moore, presiding officer, closed the morning program with an address to the conference. The first general session of the conference was held this afternoon.

Pageant Presented.

A pageant illustrating the work of the Warren A. Candler hospital was presented tonight.

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, of Washington, preached tonight on "The Reaction of a Patriarch's Prayer."

Memorial services for deceased members of the conference will be held tomorrow, with an address by the Rev. H. T. Freeman, Valders district superintendent. Visitors later will be guests at a reception on the grounds of the Candler hospital.

Dr. Roy L. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate, will lead a special "Youth Night" program tomorrow night.

Grocer Found Slain in Store Near Edison

EDISON, Ga., Nov. 8.—(AP)—J. W. Shanley, 77, today was found beaten to death and robbed in his small grocery store about a mile north of here.

Coroner E. J. Kinney said Shanley's skull was crushed when he was struck about the left temple with a blunt instrument "by a party or parties unknown."

Sheriff J. B. Adams, of Calhoun county, began an immediate investigation, assisted by police from Albany. They learned Shanley pursued a cash drawer had been looted. A few pennies had been left scattered on the floor.

The body was found at about 6:30 last night, when a customer had been unable to enter the store. They notified Shanley's wife and daughter, Miss Kate Shanley, who went to the scene, accompanied by a friend.

Although the wife and daughter lived alone in his store, in a Negro community. He moved to Edison from Ohio several years ago.

Surviving, in addition to his wife and daughter, is a son, Gaylord, who lives in Albany.

Sheriff Adams said he found no clues to the identity of the slayer. The body was clothed. The amount of money taken could not be estimated.

Defense Group Suggests Study Of Georgia Ore

Laboratory Proposed for Evaluating Cartersville Deposits.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 8.—(P)

Establishment of a laboratory near Cartersville by the national defense committee to determine the indirect military value of manganese deposits there was recommended by the Georgia committee on national defense today.

The committee met at Savannah Beach with Charles A. Collier, of Atlanta, chairman, presiding. A "pilot plant" which would evaluate the richness of the ore in the Cartersville area and its "commercial workability" was suggested.

Proposed by Peyton.

The proposal came in a report compiled by Captain Garland Peyton, of Atlanta, director of the State Division of Mines, Mining and Geology, and submitted to the committee today by R. C. Job, of Atlanta.

Collier said there was ready for immediate use 1,500,000 tons of manganese in the Cartersville deposits, which would supply the entire demands of the United States for a year and a half.

This was one of the principal ways and means being considered by the committee whereby Georgia's share in the national defense contracts might be increased. Collier reported Georgia had received to date only $25,000,000 of a total of 10 billion dollars' worth of national defense contracts.

To Widen Scope.

The committee was invited to hold its next meeting in Rome. The committee usually meets monthly.

Collier said that the state committee, its preliminary organization work completed, now is prepared to widen the scope of its cooperation with the national committee.

Also to be considered, said Collier, was the appointment of regional chairmen to study agricultural resources and production, health, welfare, consumer interest, housing, works and facilities, human resources and skills, industrial resources and production.

Appointment of committees and individuals to deal with the various activities likewise will receive consideration.

James L. Parker, Of Marietta, Dead

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 8.—James L. Parker, 66, former mayor pro tem of Marietta and for 31 years a general contractor, died of a heart attack here today. Stricken while on a construction job, he died on route to a local hospital.

Mr. Parker, a native of Paulding county, had lived in Marietta, Smyrna and Kennesaw the last 21 years. He once served as mayor of Kennesaw, and in 1937 ran unsuccessfully for mayor of Marietta. He was a deacon in the Second Baptist church here, was for many years a director in the Cobb County Fair Association, and was a former Rotarian.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Emma Gray Parker; one daughter, Mrs. C. E. McRae, of Smyrna; three brothers, G. R. Parker, of Marietta; W. E. Parker, of Vinings, and John Parker, of Jopka, Ala., and two sisters, Mrs. J. M. Lankford and Mrs. W. L. Fincher, of Atlanta.

Funeral plans were incomplete tonight, but rites will be held here Sunday, with interment in Marietta City cemetery.

Fannin County Ballots Republican All the Way

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

BLUE RIDGE, Ga., Nov. 8.—Fannin county, traditionally Republican, continued its record this week by voting Republican on all candidates, from coroner to President.

Winning candidates were: For county commissioner, G. A. Curtis; for ordinary, J. M. Nichols; for state senator, C. W. Kiker, defeating William Butt; for sheriff, H. C. Collins; for tax collector, F. K. Anderson; for representative, Cecil Hartness; for clerk of court, L. A. Styles; for tax receiver, J. E. Nichols; for school superintendent, O. R. Guthrie; for surveyor, T. H. Ellis; for coroner, Frank Brackett.

Negro Sentenced To Die After Assault Conviction

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 8.—Lewis Wilcoxson, 17-year-old Negro, late today was found guilty by a Cobb county superior court jury of criminal assault and sentenced to die in the electric chair December 13. Judge E. Harold Hawkins pronounced sentence.

Wilcoxson was charged with assaulting a 20-year-old white woman west of here September 22.

Two Benning Soldiers Charged With Desertion

ALBANY, Ga., Nov. 8.—(P)

Two soldiers from Fort Benning, arrested here yesterday on charges of desertion, were turned over to military authorities from the encampment today, according to Police Chief Jim Moore.

The men were listed as Foster Alley and Perry D. McDaniels, both privates in Company D, 67th Armed Regiment, Chief Moore said.

NEW POWER RECORD.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 8.—(P)—Voters stayed up late in Chattanooga to get election returns. Superintendent States R. Finley, of the electric power board, said power consumption during the 24-hour period including election night was the highest ever recorded for a similar time in the city's history.

Court Hearing Called To Decide Fate of Cake-Walks in Schools

By BRUCE WILDER.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

LAVONIA, Ga., Nov. 8.—The fate of the cake-walk and other "benefit" affairs used far and wide hung in the balance this week, with this little Franklin county city the center of a controversy on the outcome of which may rest the legality of such performances.

A hearing, set for November 18 before Judge Clarke Edwards, of the northern judicial circuit, in Carnesville, will answer "yes" or "no" to the controversial question: "Shall cake-walks be permitted in Franklin county schools?"

The controversy, begun two weeks ago, flared anew last week when a minister filed a petition branding games at a Lavonia Halloween carnival as "gambling." Asking an injunction against the Halloween games, the Rev. Reid Lunsford, pastor of Fairview Baptist church, four miles west of Lavonia, was granted the hearing, which will determine the fate of a now-temporary injunction.

Three "Games." The "games" to which he referred were the cake-walk, bingo and a raffle.

In the cake-walk, as it is known in this section, the floor is marked into sections, a "walk" by participants proceeds until a bell is rung, and those stopping on certain "lucky" lines are declared the winners.

If the minister wins his fight, the court order would prohibit the use of Franklin county school property in the raising of money in this manner.

Listing this case as the first of its kind in his knowledge, with the possibility of a legal precedent, E. R. McMurry, of Lavonia, member of the county board of education, said the board would present Colonel William (Bill) Hall, Carnesville lawyer, as defense counsel.

Meanwhile, citizens of Canon, wondering if theirs would be the last, went ahead with a cake-walk as scheduled tonight despite the projected hearing.

Halted Movie.

Mr. McMurry said tonight that the controversy began when Mr. Lunsford, two weeks ago, was granted an injunction stopping a Sunday movie sponsored by the Lavonia U. D. C. members, the proceeds from which were to have been used by the high school science department to buy equipment. The movie was then made free, but those attending were permitted to contribute a sum if they wished.

The following week, when the high school Halloween carnival sought to raise funds for the same purpose, Mr. Lunsford said his restraining order was "too late to stop the show" but now that his argument had been granted a public hearing, he was "convinced the law will bear me out and that other public-spirited citizens throughout the county will follow through."

A minister for 17 years, Mr. Lunsford is 37 years old. He attended Mercer University.

Members of the Franklin county school board are T. A. Skelton, of Carnesville, chairman; C. B. Akin, of Carnesville, superintendent; Gordon N. Nelms, of Royston, and J. W. South, of Carnesville, and Mr. McMurry.

Action Is Begun For Expansion Of Tech Stands

Plan for 5,000 More Seats To Be Made Next Week.

A proposal to increase the seating capacity of Grant field by 5,000 through construction of a second deck of seats over the west stands will be made to the athletic board next week, Professor A. H.

Armstrong, faculty chairman of athletics at Georgia Tech, said yesterday.

"Increasing attendance during the past few years, particularly an increasing demand for season seats, has made some increase in the seating capacity advisable," Professor Armstrong said. "The final decision in the matter, of course, is up to the athletic board, made up of Dr. Brittain, six faculty men, three alumni and three students," he pointed out.

The increase in seating capacity, which would cost approximately $65,000, has been under consideration for some time, Professor Armstrong said. The fact that it would probably be approved this year was carried last spring on

The Constitution sports pages. The proposal will be presented to the athletic board by Coach William A. Alexander, director of athletics.

Fire Department Battles Two Blazes in Valdosta

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Nov. 8.—The Valdosta fire department early yesterday was called to battle two fires involving eight residences on three separate streets.

The first alarm was from West Magnolia street, near York, where one dwelling was destroyed and three others, damaged. Two on York street caught fire and were damaged, two on River street also caught fire from flying sparks,

Man Admits Cremation of 10-Year-Old

Intensive Two-Day Police Search for Honor Student Ends.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—(P)—A two-day search of Bronx buildings, basements, rooftops and sewers ended today when police said a building superintendent confessed that he had choked and cremated Genevieve Connolly, 10, parochial school honor student. "Something snapped in my mind," was the explanation which Assistant District Attorney Sylvester Ryan said was given by the superintendent, Thomas Conroy, 38. Conroy has one son, six. He said he grabbed the child in an apartment house hallway, gagged her and half-carried her down the rear stairway to the boiler room. "I threw her on the coal pile and choked her," police quoted Conroy as saying. Then, authorities were told, he disposed of her body in the furnace.

Men Agree With These Opinions

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "I've been watching Jane, trying to see why she gives her things away. Do you think it may be because she feels insecure and is trying to buy favor with the other children?"

Mother: "Jane is the most generous child I ever knew. She'd give away all her playthings if I didn't stop her. Just look at her now. Isn't her generosity a sweet and wonderful trait?"

Parents should question the "why" back of excessive generosity.

MY DAY: South American College Students

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Thursday.—My husband and the boys stayed in Hyde Park yesterday with my mother-in-law. The dedication of the new post office in the village was the official occurrence of the day. I left in the morning for New York City, for I had promised to meet Mr. Charles Taussig to talk over the three-day meeting here of the national advisory committee of the National Youth Administration, and also to see Lady Lindsay, who wanted to talk over several things on which we have been working together.

At 3 o'clock I took a plane for Washington, and was a little late, for we had to land at Bolling Field. At tea, two young men who are fired with enthusiasm over the promotion of real understanding between the South American countries and the United States, told me something of their hopes and plans for the future. They are both teaching in American colleges, but would like to start a school in some South American country to prepare young South Americans to enter college in this country, and to encourage some of our youngsters to study in South American countries, where they can better prepare for future work with their neighbor friends, come to dinner, and about midnight I began to realize that I had had little sleep in the past 24 hours. I almost missed getting up in time to meet the President this morning! I did reach the station at 8:30 and the cabinet, the commissioners, some members of congress and many friends were already gathered there. The people of the District of Columbia turned out in great numbers to welcome back the President and Vice President-elect. When we reached the White House, all the members of the household, with the ushers, the aides and the Marine Band, were there to greet us. The front gates were open and the President had to go out under the front portico once before breakfast and once after it to wave his greeting to the people standing outside.

Then I went immediately to the opening session of the advisory committee of the NYA, returned to the White House for a press conference, and then ran over to the executive office to be with the President when he greeted all the members of the executive office staff. I finally found myself seated with Mrs. Helm to go over the accumulated details of social life, which must now be considered.

I shall quote just a brief excerpt from a letter I received this morning: "I have read and listened to both parties all that I could, and weighed it all with what knowledge and judgment I have. I am bound as an American to say that if the people's vote gives Wendell Willkie the office, then we owe him, while he is there, the loyalty, devotion, co-operation and the encouragement that is due any man on whom we trust so heavy and frightening a responsibility. I, for one, pray that I may never forget this, my responsibility to our government."

Hands Tell a Lot About The Person Who Owns Them

By Caroline Chatfield.

This isn't a beauty column (I wouldn't know how to write one) but merely some observations on the subject of hands—a woman's hands. The care she takes is a cue to her grooming. The ways she uses them are indication of her character and disposition as well as of her breeding. Amazing how much a pair of hands will tell about the woman that owns them.

If she has bodily grace and mental poise her hands tell the glad news. If she's fidgety and nervous, emotionally unstable, her hands betray her. If she is one of these efficient persons, despairs of the inefficient, one who can tie up a neat package, untie the tightest knot, darn, sew, upholster a chair, change a tire and lay brick if necessary, her hands tell the world about her skills.

Go to a public gathering where there are all sorts of people if you want to study the subject, and watch the women in front of you. I did this recently. There was the rascally woman with the close cropped hair and mannish costume. Even if you hadn't seen her hair cut or her clothes, the way she swept her hand over her whole head at one full swoop

There was the careless groomer with the frowsy hair-do, a wrinkled blouse and a not-too-clean string of pearls around her not-too-clean neck. Up went her hand and with a gesture you'd make stuffing feathers in an old pillow case, she mauled the stray locks, pushing them any old way, and she repeated the gesture all through the evening. Don't you know her type?

Next there was a bit of feminine perfection, a slender, gray-haired woman who removed her hat, not with her fist, as some do, but with her beautifully manicured fingers, laid it lovingly in her lap, patted her neck curls and then with a graceful, swanlike motion put her hands slowly down where they remained motionless until she was ready to go home. No fingering her face, no fooling with her hair, no nervous, jerky motions. Perfect poise.

Queer, there's a close affinity between love and hands. We always love the hands of our dear ones however they are shaped or misshaped, however they are used or misused.

THESE WOMEN -- By d'Alessio

"... Now HERE'S someone who'll give us an unbiased opinion!"

By Ida Jean Kain.

What is sauce for the goose is so frequently derided as applesauce by the gender that when I ventured to ask a few men about Manhattan to tell me what they really think about women dieting, I humbly expected them to poke fun. But from all I gather, dieting is a very good thing — for women!

You get a clearly defined line on the masculine way of thinking from Victor Moore, the genial and popular comedian, who promptly told me that "I am plump—I wouldn't say fat—but I tried once to starve myself to lose weight, which I did successfully. But I gave it up and am now enjoying life and eating whatever I crave." But here it comes, the old double-cross standard! "Of course, the gals have to be more careful than men," Mr. Moore continued, "and I believe that the old saying 'nobody loves a fat man' applies more so to the ladies. I like 'em streamlined myself!"

Well, nothing could be plainer than that! A man likes to eat, but he likes women to be slim! And if further clarification is needed, it is amply furnished by Lester Gaba, designer, artist and creator of those incredibly naughty and superbly svelte window mannequins. Mr. Gaba started off with the objection that I had asked the wrong question. "It shouldn't be 'should a woman diet?'" declared Mr. Gaba, "but rather, 'should a woman mention dieting?'" The point is, no man likes to hear the gory details! The charm and beauty a woman is trying to achieve will be somewhat dispelled if she gives away the secret. For a woman to discuss her diet with a man is to disillusion him as completely as if she let him see her in cold cream and curlers. Let her diet as intelligently and as secretly as possible!

So—women talk too much! Well, that seems to be the way most men feel. It's nice going, Mr. Gaba, and so is what follows: "I am absolutely in favor of women dieting, for two reasons," he stated. "First, that's the only way a woman can keep a figure of which she is proud. Second, most men are unconsciously disgusted by a woman who thinks too much about eating or who appears to like it too much. When a man is with a woman, he likes to think of her as something aesthetic—whether he realizes it or not! And, furthermore, he likes to imagine that she is so interested in him that nothing else matters—not even food!"

Charles Hanson Towne, the writer, put his finger on a sore point with the assertion that "I said once, when asked what I dislike most about modern women, that it was that diet look! I still feel that way. I like women who eat like they're going to be lunched in order in advance—and not nibble at a dab of spinach the size of a lark's egg."

"I dislike extremes of any kind, fat women or overly thin women! But women will go on being sheep and the slaves of fashion experts—saying that's all there is! And I really love them and wouldn't have them change for the world!" Being a writer, Mr. Towne manages to cover quite a lot of territory in a few words. I agree that the "diet look" is not pretty—but neither is it necessary! And what I heard Mr. Towne say, sounding like anything else, is that he doesn't like women who are too plump!

If you are in an argumentative mood, you might object that these are the opinions of only three men, and that there are plenty of others who staunchly declare they prefer women to be plump. The answer to that is: They seem to date the slim girls! And if that sounds too pat, think this one over: Why is it you never hear of a man divorcing a slim wife to marry a fat secretary?

There's no prospect more pleasing than that of slimming down! If you are overweight, send a stamped envelope, large size and with plenty of postage, to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., for these two leaflets: "Measure Your Curves" and the "Weight and Measurement Record."

Save Money By Keeping A Budget

What a wonderful feeling to discover that all the bills are paid and you've money left over for pet projects, good times!

But this may never be more than a day dream to you, if you spend without a budget. There's always some unexpected bill cropping up, wiping out your surplus and with it the hopes you had of buying a new car or taking the family on a spree.

That's the beauty of a budget. By allotting so much to each item you keep everyday expenses under control—have that important margin of extra money which makes life fun.

Take the family clothing bill. If you don't spend ahead you may have spent more than you should last month for Junior's suit and not have enough this month for his overcoat. So there goes your margin money again!

But on a budget you set aside about 11 per cent of your income each month for clothes—$17 if your income's $150. Then you allot to each person a certain part of this sum. To decide how much each should get, estimate the family's clothing needs from past years.

Women Continue To Hunt Gay Accents For Hats

Furred and Feathered.

Looks as if no winged or four-legged beast is safe these days, what with chic but predatory ladies snatching pelts and pinions to clap atop their pompadours! Leopards and ocelots from tropical lands, seals from the far north, beavers and even the lowly wolverine, are really getting around—and because they adorn the heads of America's best-dressed women, they naturally have entered into the smartest and most exclusive rendezvous. The little red hen's plumage takes a quick jump from barnyard to bistro, turning up in brilliantly dyed hues. Pheasant and maribou feathers are noted with great frequency.

Frivolous and Luxurious. Now! the time when smart women, having long ago settled their "first fall hats" problems, are casting about for headpieces to provide witty, gay, feminine punctuation for deep-toned autumn costumes. Small brims with bright suede flowers clustered at the front. Black calots with leopard petals to match a leopard muff. High draped turbans in smoky velvet. Big brims with intricate wool jersey draping. Scarlet fezzes with shining black tassels. Silhouette Slant. The off-face styles are leading in popularity, in both brimmed and small hat types, although there are plenty of forward tilting hats, equally chic, for those who prefer them. Vells are being much worn with all types, ranging from infinitesimal nose vells to those which tie around the throat.

Coiffures.

Gone is the day of the long, unwieldy bob. There's a sleek, soignée look to the newer hairdresses, and fashion leaders are quick to adopt new coiffures to match new bonnets. Hair about six inches long all around is correct, say leading hairdressers, who design high pompadours for shining contrast to the black backdrop of a big brim. The back hair is smooth, and at the nape of the neck there's often a soft shell roll or a cluster of curls.

Conservation Pieces. Scintillating little gem-encrusted skullcaps for evening wear—pleasant distractions for those in the row behind at the theater, and no hindrance to good vision. Glass silk turbans shot with metallic threads, turning young moderns into most alluring women of tomorrow. Grey maribou frontier caps with broad bands to be worn either under the chin or dangling down behind, a la Daniel Boone. With these, matching maribou cuffs to be slipped on a dark coat. Sensational zebra postillions or berets with huge matching zebra muffs, dramatic and brand new.

Matrons' Slenderizing At-Home Style

By Lillian Mae.

Memo to a busy housewife: "Here's a must-have dress for your winter home-work!" Pattern 4447 is a Lillian Mae design with a crisp, rise-and-shine quality that will carry you smartly through a full day. There are slenderizing lines in the skirt, with its panelled back and its side sections that rise to points at the trim waistline. Gathers above the waist-seams and below the neat yokes hold the fullness of the bodice just where you need it most. Make the sleeves long for warmth. Or leave them short and trim them with well-shaped cuffs in self fabric or contrast to match the attractive, star-point collar. Buttons down the center-front seam add a nice feeling of height.

Pattern 4447 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 4 1-8 yards 35-inch fabric and 5-8 yard of contrast.

Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number. Extra! Extra! Everything about the Lillian Mae winter fashion book makes extra news! Its vivid pages are filled with styles new as tomorrow's headlines—each in a sure-to-fit pattern. Smart sewing for the whole family circle, including workaday modes and party frocks... tailored twosomes and afternoon dresses... slimming matron styles and lively "small fry" outfits... basic wardrobes for office and campus. ## "Black and White" Winter Forecast

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 8.—Here's Rita Hayworth again, posing in something new and beautiful in silver-fox coats, over a blue satin evening gown highlighted by a wide-buckled belt. The coat is simple, but expensive, the pelts worked in an effective straight line treatment. Forecasting a "black and white"

Ann Miller, personification of glamour, is one of the ornamental adjuncts to Republic's "Hit Parade of 1941." Her pink marganza frock is set off dramatically by a white fox fur cape.

Consider How To Dodge Infectious Cold Bacteria

By Dr. William Brady.

Most of the stereotyped propaganda which comes by the basketful in every mail is pretty dreary reading. But from a bit distributed by some "council" or other (usually that name suggests that proprietary interests are behind it) I plucked this paragraph the other day:

Although exposure, exhaustion, dissipation, insufficient and improper food, and unhygienic surroundings which lower the general level of health tend to make one more susceptible to colds.

You see, the bright young woman who composed the piece had to get over the idea of "lowered resistance" without saying it in the hackneyed way. ... even healthy noses and throats harbor many varieties of microscopical livestock such as staphylococci, streptococci, and pneumococci, it was stated.

People have been led to believe that colds are simply a congestion of the nose and throat. But, say the medical scientists, colds are really an acute infection in which congestion of the nose and throat is only one symptom. Just who the "medical scientists" are the bright young woman does not reveal, but unless she has them all wrong they are regular enough "medical scientists" for the staphylococci, pneumococci and streptococci are more like vegetables than like "livestock," and no one has evidenced any evidence that such germs, harbored in nose and throat by a normal or healthy person, can or do ever cause any illness in that person.

As for the rest of the explanation or elucidation of "colds" attributed to the "medical scientists," there is no particular evidence to support any of the notions set forth as predisposing or contributing causes of infection. All that is just this season's rehash of the hackneyed theories which were current thirty or forty years ago.

Any one fairly well informed in bacteriology should know that strains of staphylococci, streptococci and pneumococci are usually found in the nose or throat of the normal person, and that these normal inhabitants of the nose or throat are generally non-pathogenic, that is, they do not cause disease in any circumstance.

The idea that any one can carry buttons. With her pompadour coiffure Miss Sothorn wears a black velvet skull cap with airplane bow. Black velvet is also used for her gloves.

And another Adrian gown, worn by Katharine Hepburn in "Philadelphia Story," is of plaid taffeta with a three-tiered skirt. Green predominates in the brilliant mixture of colors. Used hair fashion, the taffeta covers the under blouse of white mousseline de soie and then sweeps to the floor in a series of three "rum-ba" tiers.

And while on the subject of "Philadelphia Story," how do you like this fall suit worn by Ruth Hussey in the picture? Of gray sheer wool, the jacket is cut in one piece and fastened at the normal waistline with intertwined loops of the same material. Collarless, it is worn over a straight short skirt. Her tuck-in scarf is of gray crepe. Perched on her swirl coiffure, a hat of scarlet felt with rooster feather in shiny black. The hat is very small and like a miniature model of a coachman's topper.

For gay California moments, Joyce Compton wears a white and vivid red slack suit. The pants in red silk jersey and very full. A white angora sweater is covered by a full-length white lamb's wool sport coat with matching red jersey lining. The piping on the three-quarter sleeves of the coat is red, also the lining of the hood. A sailor's knot scarf in red chiffon ties at the neckline. Red and white low-heeled "wedgies" match the large bag of red and white striped jersey. Nice—if you are going south.

Ann Rutherford owns an Oxford-gray and white checked sport suit. The jacket top is collarless with buttons down the front. The skirt is cut on simple lines with a bit of flare at the bottom. Orry Kelly, dress designer at Warners, likes reptile and leather for trimming dresses. He piped the revers and front closing of a beige broadcloth coat recently worn by Rosalind Russell with brown alligator. For Ann Sheridan, in "Honeymoon for Three," he designed a jigger coat in black and dusky pink English tweed, lined in pink suede.

Laraine Day looks cute in her new two-piece dress. There is front fullness, peg pockets, and a shirtwaist top of plaid rayon taffeta. The double-breasted bolero is faced with the same plaid and finished off with a frivolous ruffle. A pill-box hat and gloves made of matching plaid complete the costume.

Lucille Ball has a woolen Rodier two-piece suit worn with cream silk blouse, with a soft turned-back collar like a shirt. The jacket is slightly longer in back and cut in a flare with diagonal stripes. The skirt of twine fabric in plain beige is cut with a slight flare, has vertical set-in pockets in front. The accompanying boston, tilted over one eye.

And here's another for Miss Ball—a chartreuse silk crepe shirtmaker dress with flared skirt. The left sleeve carries a monogram worked in silver nail-heads set closely together. She wears a matching beanie. Lucille also owns a rodeo shirtmaker in navy gabardine with white piping and lacings on the sleeves instead of buttons. Bright red leather belt studded with jewels and nail-heads. Navy beanie. P. Looks like the "beanie" and Lucille are here to stay.

Woman's Quiz

Q. Please give directions for treating shower curtains to prevent mildew.

A. Heat for 20 minutes, a thoroughly clean curtain in a solution of 1 to 2 ounces of soap to each gallon of water. About 1 1-2 gallons will cover an average shower curtain. Remove the curtain and squeeze out excess soap. Put the wet cloth into a second solution of cadmium chloride crystals, 3 ounces to a gallon of water. Heat for about 30 minutes, wring out, and dry without rinsing. Hang it on a twine line, as a metal line may stain the fabric. This treatment makes the fabric resistant to mildew until laundered again and does not affect the color. Crystals of cadmium chloride can be purchased from drugists.

Q. When cooking French fried potatoes, how long should the potatoes be soaked?

A. About 2 hours, in salted water.

Miss Martha Merritt Bows To Society At Brilliant Supper Dance Held at Club

Amid the breath-taking beauty of thirty dozen red radiance roses, sent from Tyler, Texas, especially for the occasion by an admiring friend, Miss Martha Merritt, one of the season's loveliest debutantes, greeted the guests attending the brilliant supper-dance last evening at the Piedmont Driving Club at which she was formally presented to society by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hynds.

The roses were arranged against a background of luxuriant palms and ferns and flanked by the countless other floral tributes received by the belle. The receiving line, comprised of Miss Merritt and Mr. and Mrs. Hynds, stood before this floral backdrop.

A profusion of chrysanthemums in autumnal shades were used as the decorations in the home with yellow predominating in the dining room. The table was covered with a lace cloth and the appointments were silver.

Assisting in entertaining the 200 guests were Mesdames Joseph Winship, B. F. Carter, Charles Hurst, Nathan Brandon, Julius Hughes, Frank Beall, D. I. McIntyre, Misses Rebecca Scott, Lane Winship and Julia Carter.

This evening Miss Nancy Witherspoon gives a steak fry at Lake-more for Miss Winship with Mesdames Evelyn Harrison and Helen McDuffie sharing honors. Next Tuesday Miss Winship will share honors with Miss Olive Belle Davis at the tea to be given by Miss Mamie Hallman, Adeline Barnett and Mary Lewis.

Next Saturday afternoon after the Tech-Alabama game, Miss Winship will be honored at the party given by Miss Frances Alston, who entertains at her home on Bellair drive.

On November 18, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dinkler Jr., entertain at the Rainbow Roof for Miss Winship.

C.; and Miss Jane Brightwell, of Athens, the guest of Miss Emmelyn Carter.

The affair was held in the handsome Georgian ballroom of the club, which presented a picture of autumnal loveliness. The tall columns down either side of the room were connected by graceful swags of southern smilax, festoons of other greenery, large clusters of colorful autumn leaves being used to decorate the top of each column.

The long buffet tables were placed on the enclosed porch adjacent to the ballroom. Centering each table were arrangements of talisman roses and snapdragons, flanked by small bowls of similar flowers and silver candelabra holding lighted white tapers.

Assisting the hosts in entertaining were a group of prominent matrons including Mesdames Sam Inman, Frank Inman, John E. Sanford, Rufus M. Darby, Joel Chandler Harris Jr. and Lee Ashcraft.

A well-known orchestra presented a program of music for dancing, and supper was served at a late hour.

Enjoying this auspicious event were several hundred members of the fashionable married and unmarried social contingents.

RICH'S

MISS MARY FRANCES SWANN.
Miss Mary Frances Swann To Wed Robert McKnight Jr.

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 8.—Of paramount social interest in Georgia and Florida is the announcement to be made tomorrow by Mr. and Mrs. James T. Swann, of Tampa, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Frances Swann, to Robert S. McKnight Jr., of Atlanta, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. McKnight, of Birmingham, Alabama.

The prominent young couple's betrothal will be revealed to Tampa society tomorrow evening when Mr. and Mrs. Swann entertain at an announcement party at the Tampa Yacht Club. The wedding will be a brilliant event of the near future in Tampa.

The beautiful bride-elect is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Floyd, of Atlanta, and has visited in that city on numerous occasions. A native of Tampa, she graduated from Plant High school, where she was a member of the I. C. T. Club.

Miss Swann received her education at the Florida State College for Women, in Tallahassee, Fla., where she was pledged to the Kappa Delta sorority. She later graduated from Fairmont College, in Washington, D. C. She has traveled both in this country and abroad, and is a member of the Tampa Junior League and the George Spenser Club and is a sponsor of the Merrymaker's Club, an exclusive organization comprised of prominent young men in Tampa. In 1937 she was a maid in the Court of Gasparilla, serving as queen of the festival the following year.

Mr. McKnight, a native of the Mississippi Delta, graduated from Central High school in Memphis, Tenn., later attending the University of Alabama and the George Washington University School of Law. He is a member of the Phi Kappa prep school fraternity and the Phi Delta Theta social fraternity. He is the nephew of Judge Sam Sprott, well-known barrister of Alabama, and the late Mrs. Sprott.

The groom-elect has been admitted to the Georgia bar, and is connected with the Home Owners' Loan Corporation in Atlanta, where he and his bride will reside following their marriage. He is a member of Druid Hills Golf Club.

Affairs Planned For Miss Sanford
Social affairs continue to be planned in compliment to Miss Dorothy Sanford, lovely fiancée of Ralph Boynton, prior to her marriage on December 7. On November 26 Mrs. W. J. Gray will honor Miss Sanford at a luncheon at her home on Peachtree road.

On the evening of November 30 Carroll Mast will give a small dinner party for Miss Sanford and Mr. Boynton in the Mirador room of the Capital City Club. On November 22 Mrs. John Hynds will honor her bride-elect niece at a luncheon at her home on Habersham road, instead of a tea as previously announced.

Rehearsal Party Honors Couple
Dr. and Mrs. Wade Woodward and their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brink, were hosts Friday evening at a party honoring Miss Joann Wilson and James League Weisiger, following the rehearsal for their marriage. The affair took place at the hosts' home on Feld avenue in Decatur.

The tea table, overlaid with a lace cloth, was centered with white chrysanthemums and snapdragons in a silver bowl, with tall white tapers in silver candelabra at either side. The punch bowl was presided over by Mrs. Wade Woodward Jr.

Others who assisted in entertaining included Mrs. Leila Collier, Miss Martha Weisiger and Miss Anne Weisiger.

The guests, numbering about 35, included the members of the bridal party and out-of-town guests.

Barbecue To Be Held.
Atlanta Club of Florida State College Alumnae meets at Lake Moore for a barbecue supper on November 13 at 6:30 o'clock. Dr. M. Gordon Brown, formerly of the University of Florida, but now professor of modern languages at Georgia School of Technology, will talk on "Conditions in Spain."

O'Keefe Orchestra
will be in RICH'S Tearoom Today

Saturday is your day, boys and girls! Today marks the opening of Rich's New Young Atlanta Shops. Surprises galore planned for you. Even the most critical of young sophisticates will love the adorable fashions, and for fellows there's not a sissy thing in a carload of togs from our Boys' Shop. Here is everything blissfully satisfying to a little girl perturbed about "being first" to sturdy young men who scorn anything faintly "different." The O'Keefe Jr. High School Orchestra will play in the tearoom from 12 to 2. Be here and enjoy this special treat. . . . Special lunch 25c.

Mrs. Fort Adams Fetes Debutantes

Complimenting two popular debutantes, Misses Elsa McCall and Mary Elizabeth Beers, was the luncheon at which Mrs. Fort Adams was hostess yesterday in the Mirador room of the Capital City Club.

The oblong table was centered with a long, graceful arrangement of lavender and yellow anemone chrysanthemums and boudleia. Marking the guests' places were hand-embroidered handkerchiefs.

Covers were laid for Misses Martha Merritt, Sarah Crigler, of Dothan, Ala.; Mary Anne McKinney, of Greenville, S. C.; Mary Jo Brownlie, of Helen, Ga.; Emelyn Carter, of Olive Bell Davis, Margaret Winslip, Evelyn Harrison, Barbara Indell, Helen McDuffie, Jean Pentecost, Gladys Randall, Isabel Vretnam, Jeanette Estes, Mrs. Howard McCall Jr., Mrs. Gilbert Beers and the hostess and honorees.

D. A. R. Chapter Will Entertain.

Lady Elizabeth Ogilthorpe Chapter, Children of the American Revolution, will be entertained by Joseph Habersham Chapter, D. A. R., at Habersham Hall, on Fifteenth street, N. E., at 3 o'clock on Thursday. Miss Gertrude Benning will preside in the absence of Mrs. L. D. Benning, Jr., senior president of the society.

Mrs. Leonard Wallace, state director, will tell of the organization of the National Society Children of the American Revolution and its history.

The junior membership committee of the Joseph Habersham Chapter will act as hostesses.

The Joseph Habersham Chapter is particularly interested in the work of the national society, D. A. R., regarding helping underprivileged young people to receive an education in one of the approved schools. Mrs. John H. Mullin is chairman of the approved school commission. She will give a supper at her home on Monday evening at 6 o'clock, to raise money for this worthy cause.

This is the second of a series of suppers, and the next will be given at the home of Mrs. John A. Beall, second vice regent, 815 Myrtle street, N. E.

For Miss Mauldin.

Miss Frances Mauldin, whose marriage to John Q. Adams Jr. will be an event of November 15, was honor guest recently at a bridal and a boudleia shower at which Miss Marie Mauldin and Mrs. H. L. Mauldin were hostesses at their home on Memorial drive. The bride-elect received lovely gifts, and contest prizes won by Mrs. Ralph Mayfield were won by yellow and white was reflected in decorations and refreshments.

Guests were Mesdames J. C. Camp, J. C. Crawford, E. A. Lewis, George M. Campbell, P. A. Webb, V. S. Anastasios, E. R. McMullan, Pearl Hulsey, Mary Lewis, Frank Hill, G. H. Harris, L. N. Morgan, George Lowe, J. C. Oliver, Lanita M. Putnam, A. M. Hughes, Solie F. Hubbard, J. T. Lewis, J. D. Hartness, H. T. Lewis, B. F. Bostain, B. B. Hightower, A. Cumming, Mary J. Jones, Ralph Mayfield, Misses Emma Hill, Helen Bostain, Mary Oliver, Betty Lewis, Anna Chaffin, Jacqueline Lewis, Alice Whitmore.

Prayer Day Held.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Sylvan Hills Methodist church and the Oakland City Methodist church held a "Day of Prayer" service at the Sylvan Hills Methodist church recently.

The morning devotion was given by Rev. T. C. Helm. Mrs. D. T. Busby spoke on "Adventures in Untried Roads" and Mrs. H. T. Truitt presented "A Scarritt Built for the Future."

Luncheon was served by the ladies of the Sylvan Hills church. The afternoon devotion was given by Rev. G. W. Hamilton, pastor of the Oakland City church, after which Mrs. E. N. Good brought a message on "Scarritt's New Day."

Pi Rho Zeta Pledges.

The members of Zeta Lambda sorority and Gamma Chi fraternity of Pi Rho Zeta International of the Atlanta School of Commerce have pledged the following:

Jimmie Dedrick, Glen Duke, H. O. Nash, Vernon Crawford, Robert Webb, Jack Hall, Bob Cook, Gene Hicks.

Doris Wright, Sara Marjorie Hughes, Margaret Terrell, Christine Hurd, Frances Camp, Gertrude Bush, Elaine Fuller, Jean Smith, Rosene Wells, Frances McElven.

The pledges were entertained by a hay ride and a dance which was held at North Fulton park.

Philathea Class.

The Philathea Class of the First Baptist church of East Point met recently at the home of Mrs. B. K. Rochester.

Plans were made for a Christmas stocking to be filled with toys for needy children, also for a Thanksgiving banquet for the members and their families. Mrs. E. W. James was appointed devotion chairman and Mrs. C. W. Gaskin, publicity chairman. The teacher, Mrs. Grover, made a short talk on "Church Attendance."

ATTEND ANNUAL LUNCHEON—Attending the annual luncheon meeting of the Sheffield Clinic of the Georgia Baptist hospital yesterday were, left to right, W. D. Barker, superintendent of the hospital; Dr. Isadore Cohn (seated) guest speaker from New Orleans; Dr. James W. Merritt, who presided, and I. M. Sheffield, (seated), donor of the clinic.

Cancer Expert Georgia Officer Will Command Fort Jackson

Nearly 100 Doctors Hear Dr. Isadore Cohn at Meeting.

Dr. Isadore Cohn, New Orleans surgeon and nationally known for his work on cancer of the bone, was guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Sheffield Clinic of the Georgia Baptist hospital yesterday. Dr. Cohn also conducted the cancer clinic where cases were presented to him which he discussed with nearly 100 doctors from Atlanta and neighboring cities.

Dr. J. L. Campbell, director of the clinic, in his annual report, said that 234 cases were examined in the clinic during the past year, an increase of 165 over the preceding year. Forty-seven per cent of the cases did not have cancer and 338 patients reported for reexamination during the year.

The clinic's weekly conferences were well attended, and the clinic provides a rich field for post-graduate work and statistical data in diagnosis and treatment, he said.

The following officers of the Sheffield Clinic were elected for the coming year: Dr. Campbell, director; Dr. O. D. Hall, associate director; Dr. C. W. Roberts, president; Dr. W. A. Kelly, secretary and treasurer, and Dr. C. G. Bolland, photographer, were re-elected; and new officers include Dr. Hugh Hall, first vice president; Dr. Fred Rudder, second vice president; Dr. John Funke, resident pathologist, and O. W. Tullio, resident radiologist.

$317,778 in Gas Taxes Divided Among Counties

Georgia counties received a total of $317,778 as their November share in the state gasoline tax yield, it was disclosed yesterday.

For each mile of state-system roads within their boundaries they were paid $28.48. One cent of the 6-cent-per-gallon levy goes to counties. Bibb county received $1,797.83, Chatham $1,937.26, Muscogee $2,156.47 and Richmond $1,949.23.

at the CITY HALL

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday sent to the fire department a badge worn several score of years ago by J. L. Gormany, who was a member of the old volunteer fire department, organized in 1851. The badge was sent to the mayor's office by D. H. Venable, Atlanta.

Councilman John A. White, sponsor of a move to eliminate the bottle neck on Peachtree street between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, yesterday received the deeds from the John E. Murphy estate, giving the necessary property for widening the thoroughfare 10 feet on the east side. He said he is attempting to get similar deeds on the west side of the street, but that the east side widening could proceed at once.

James J. Little, deputy city clerk since 1929, will be nominated by City Clerk Joe Richardson to succeed the late A. W. McClain, second deputy clerk. The nomination will go to council November 18, Richardson said. Little is the son of Joe C. Little, senior city tax assessor.

at the STATE CAPITOL

Governor Rivers yesterday proclaimed Monday as Armistice Day and ordered that the state capitol close on that day. He praised President Roosevelt as a paragon of peace and good-will and asked Georgians to pause in their daily pursuits and give reflection to the great blessings of peace.

Catchy Music, Adventure at Theaters Here

Melodrama Also Among New Offerings of Movies.

By LEE ROGERS, Motion Picture Editor.

Adventurous action, catchy music and melodrama are the new offerings in the film theaters this week.

Tyrone Power has surprised his severest critics and puts on a very capable performance in a role calling for dash and acting ability. His "Mark of Zorro" at the Fox is his best effort to date.

Music, dancing and romance are all worked into "Too Many Girls," the movie-making of the Broadway show, which is featured at the Paramount.

"Angels Over Broadway" is a slow-moving but well-enacted melodrama written, produced and directed by Ben Hecht, at the Rialto.

CHANGE HAS COME OVER TYRONE POWER.

A change has come over Tyrone Power. He is actually good in "The Mark of Zorro" and his performance as the dashing Zorro and the retiring, sissified son of a wealthy landowner in old California is comparable to that of the late Douglas Fairbanks in the same role in silent film days.

Power has a fine supporting cast but gets his chief help from Eugene Pallette as the fat priest who urges the landed rich to rise up and throw out the tyrant in the governor's chair who is bleeding the peons. In the fight which climaxes the film, the good priest gives a good account of himself, mumbling a prayer for heavenly forgiveness every time he socks a soldier on the head.

The story concerns the fight carried on by one dashing cavalier against the oppression of the Governor. He robs the Governor to give to the peons while all the time posing as the effeminate suitor of the Governor's wife and his niece.

Lovers of action will find a dashing hero in Mr. Power this time, even if he didn't quite make the grade in "Jesse James." Also in the cast are Linda Darnell, Basil Rathbone (giving another smooth performance), J. Edward Bromberg (as the frightened Governor), and Gale Sondergaard (as the Governor's ambitious wife).

DELIGHTFUL MUSICAL APPEARS AT PARAMOUNT

"Too Many Girls," at the Paramount currently, is a delightful musical show with catchy singable songs, fancy and trick dancing, beautiful girls, fine comedy but nothing more than that.

This is the movie version of the stage production and directed by the same man—George Abbott, who knows something about musical shows and dancing girls. The cast for a large part is the same. Given the best of musical offerings.

The story is satire on college football and is built around a little New Mexico college which overnight becomes the mecca of all the college men in the east in particular of all the all-American players.

Night Spots

HENRY GRAY HOTEL—Spanish Room, Jimmie Richards and his orchestra, featuring the Moyer Twins, the Three Bachellers, Billy Richards and his company, playing dinner-dance music nightly from 7 p. m. until 12 midnight. Three floor shows daily.

DEKALB—"House of Seven Gables," and "East Point Rhythm."

COMEDY—Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland are starred in "Arise My Love," a comedy of war, which is the midnight preview at the Fox theater tonight.

SERIOUS PLAY AT THE RIALTO

Serious play on the offering this week is "Angels Over Broadway," at the Rialto, which tells a melodramatic story of four lives thrown together during one night on Broadway.

One is a dancer, down on her own; one an ex-bellboy looking for a sucker; another a drunken playwright, and the third a man who stole $3,000 to fill the greedy fingers of an ambitious wife. The latter threatens suicide, but as the four get drawn together all map plans for saving him from that fate.

The story is a brain child of Ben Hecht. It is produced and directed by him so that his ideas prevail. It is slow at places, but the lines are good and the acting is fine.

In the cast are Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Rita Hayworth, John Qualen and Thomas Mitchell.

State Theater Is Proposed By Eddie Cook

Veteran Says Legitimate Stage Is Gone Unless It Gets Aid.

By LEE ROGERS.

Salvation of the legitimate theater lies in the establishment of a state theater, or if an entire state can't be awakened to the need, in the formation of city theaters, Eddie Cook, grayed veteran of the theater, declared here yesterday.

He was in town as manager of John Golden's "Skyark" company, which stars Gertrude Lawrence at the Erlanger through tonight. He began bringing stage shows to Atlanta in the days of the original DeGue opera house in the 19th century.

The legitimate theater in the United States is the forgotten state, Cook said. "We have made provision for art collections and literature, but have done nothing about promoting the future of live actors on the local stages. The stage speaks English, but we've forgotten that the English spoken is the present generation has never received the benefits of the performances of Bernhardt and the other great actresses and actors."

"We have become a people of boiled hams in so far as appreciation of the theater is concerned."

Play in Barns.

Cook's big complaint was that today the auditoriums in which the stage units which do travel must play are nothing but barns, in which it is an insult to ask an artist like Miss Lawrence to appear.

"Atlanta is one of the few cities in which remains a decent theater for stage attractions," he explained.

"Mac on Savannah, Augusta, Waycross—they should all be on a legitimate theater route, but are not."

not Atlanta is the only city ever considered in this section for building a show. We jumped here from Jackson, Miss., where we played in a barn."

The state must step in and make provisions for supporting the theater, providing a stage on which youth can be trained and on which traveling units of the Broadway hits may perform. These theaters must be strictly used by the legitimate show people and must have no motion picture equipment in them else the film people will dominate them and run the show people out.

City-Sponsored Theaters.

"Cities themselves could establish these legitimate theaters and once they were established throughout the country it would not be difficult to get the shows into town," he said.

When a legitimate show comes to town they bring money, they spend money, they trade in your shops, room in your hotels. Somebody besides the express company gets money when a show company arrives."

Cook, in 1928, through Franklin D. Roosevelt, then governor of New York, sought to appeal to the Governors' conference meeting in Salt Lake City for aid in the plan to establish the state theaters.

Scottie Guesses the Truth About the Ring Glory Asks Him Not To Tell Anyone

SYNOPSIS. Glory Stevens tears off her wedding gown, leaving the bride party waiting at the church, and just catches a train for Los Angeles and Hollywood. Since she has wanted to be an actress like her mother who died when Glory was 13. In the Pullman dressing room she meets Helen Jamison, who has won some recognition as a character actress. She advises Glory to return home, then, calling herself a fool, suggests that she take an inexpensive apartment next to hers. Glory makes the studio rounds daily until her money is gone, then Helen urges Scottie Weston, her own agent, to discourage the girl and send her home. Instead he gets her a job in the Sunset studio wardrobe department, but the very first day a pin in a jacket sleeve scratches Mona Greer, and that temperamental star has Glory discharged. Scottie sends Glory to dramatic school and she is constantly with him at important night spots, wearing gowns designed by William Van Lingham, Sunset's chief designer. After Mark Spencer, Scottie's handsome young lawyer, meets Glory he is with her daily. Allan Rhodes, popular movie lover, plays with her in a screen test and they fall in love. And all the time Scottie is in love with her. Glory gets small parts in two pictures and moves to a smart apartment. Allan leaves Hollywood on business, he says—and Glory is distracted until he phones her on her birthday. When he returns, he gives her a beautiful diamond ring, and she doesn't think she should accept it, and he tells her it is an engagement ring. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT XVII. But it was Helen, not Allan, who entered.

"I forgot my key," she explained. "What time is he coming?"

"Any minute now," Glory replied excitedly, clasping twin silver bracelets about her slender wrists.

"I think I'll go out," Helen said. "You needn't," Glory said, but she was glad when Helen insisted. Glory had a feeling that tonight was something special. Allan wanted to talk to her. It would be so much better if they could be alone.

She dismissed Tillie for the evening and when the buzzer sounded again Glory herself ran to answer it.

"Allan, darling!" she cried, and was in his arms.

"I've missed you so," she murmured.

Allan held her away from him for a moment. "You've never looked so beautiful," he told her as his eyes drank in every detail of her appearance.

Glory's head was swimming. Allan was with her again, here in this room lighting a cigaret as he had so many times before! She was determined not to be the kind of woman who asked, "Why didn't you call?" Where were you?" She knew that Allan hated to be cross-examined. So she forced back the questions that were leaping to her lips, and smiled tenderly at him. His handsome face looked jubilant.

"Where would you like to go tonight?" he asked.

"Anywhere," Glory answered happily.

"No," Allan corrected, "not just anywhere. This happens to be a very special occasion."

Glory's heart leaped. What did he mean?

Allan rose and drew a small velvet box from his pocket.

"Your birthday present," he said.

Her eyes grew wide as she saw a magnificent square-cut sapphire ring edged with diamonds.

"Oh, Allan!" she breathed rapturously.

"Put it on," Allan urged.

Glory placed the ring on her finger where it flashed its blue fire against her white hand.

"A sapphire to match your eyes!" Allan whispered.

Glory gazed at the ring longingly.

"It's lovely," she stammered, "but I shouldn't keep such an expensive present."

Allan laughed as he drew her into his arms.

"Don't you understand, sweet?" he said softly. "It's an engagement ring!"

Glory's heart stood still. She could not believe that Allan had really proposed. An engagement ring, he had said! She gazed at the square-cut sapphire gleaming on her finger as if afraid it might vanish.

"What's the matter, Glory? Don't you like it?" Allan asked.

"Like it? Oh, Allan, it's beautiful!" She pressed her glowing face against his shoulder. How could she have doubted him? He had been sincere from the beginning. He wanted to marry her! What greater proof could there be of his devotion?

As if reading her mind, Allan said, "You believe now that I love you?"

He read the answer in her shining blue eyes.

"Then kiss me!" he commanded.

"They went to dinner at one of the best restaurants. Glory would have preferred a quieter place to celebrate their engagement but Allan said there would be some 'big shots' there. It annoyed her to think that he was forced to think about his career at this particular moment, but after all, what did it matter where they were to be married. Allan would be hers!

As they danced, she asked, "You won't object if I go on with my work, will you, Allan?"

He smiled. "No! I want you to! I want you to be glamorous and beautiful—always! someday YOUR name will be in lights, too, Glory, and I'll be proud of you."

How perfectly Allan fit in with her plans! Her ambition and her love for him seemed to be one magic emotion.

Back at their table again, Glory saw Scottie Weston coming toward them.

Allan lowered his voice. "Look, Glory. We won't say anything about our engagement, yet."

Before she could reply, Scottie was greeting them.

To Allan's obvious annoyance, he sat down, and Glory saw that his shrewd eyes instantly noticed the ring she was wearing.

When Allan excused himself to speak to some one at another table, Scottie barked, "Where did you get it?"

Glory hesitated. What could she tell him? Scottie knew that she couldn't afford to buy a ring like that on her salary. But after all it wasn't any of Scottie's business. It was ridiculous the way he acted about Allan.

"You don't have to tell me. I can guess! Are you engaged?" Scottie inquired dryly.

"Yes!" Glory burst out. "We are, but Allan asked me not to mention it tonight, so please don't tell anyone."

"Don't worry!" Scottie assured her. "But why doesn't Allan want anyone to know it?"

"Oh, Scottie, please! Don't act this way about it!"

"Well, why should he want it to be a secret if it's on the up and up?"

Why was it that Allan came between her and every one else? She always quarreled with Scottie and Helen about him, even Mark? Why did they all refuse to believe that Allan Rhodes was sincere?

"You think it's none of my business," Scottie continued, "but it is, because you happen to be under contract, Glory, and you've got to make the grade."

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—The entire day and evening favors financial, domestic, social and business interests. The hours between 2:30 p. m. and 7:04 p. m. are especially good.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—Between 8:27 a. m. and 3:08 p. m. favors general business and professional activities, matters pertaining to law, religion and philosophy. After 3:08 p. m. favors correspondence, conferences, dealings with those in high positions.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—The day favors matters pertaining to the ground, such as real estate, mining, moving. After 6:01 p. m. favors social affairs and sports.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Before 1:03 p. m. holds conservative influences, favoring matters of a substantial nature, getting at things in a positive way and finishing work that has been dragging. After 1:03 p. m., radical changes or departure from ordinary procedure should be guarded against.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—It will be wise to keep an eye on money matters today, for the tendency is towards extravagance and misadventure. The evening hours after 8:14 p. m. suggest unusual caution to avoid sharp and severe disappointments resulting from unexpected situations.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—The entire day and until 6:50 p. m. favors ordinary and routine matters. This is especially true in connection with communications, correspondence and conferences. After 6:50 p. m. favors social and entertainment fields.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—The period previous to 5:10 p. m. does not especially favor new plans or projects. The most favorable influence of the day culminates between 5:10 p. m. and 10:44 p. m., making this a favorable period for matters of an unusual nature, progressive affairs and where the good of the public is concerned.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—Harmonious vibrations operate before 12:40 p. m. for pleasant and profitable contacts in finances, domestic affairs and business. The remainder of the day and evening favors sticking to routine.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Previous to 2:48 p. m. is the better portion of the day, when you should make every effort to get conditions set in motion for progress. Between 2:48 p. m. and 6:50 p. m. care should be used to hold your peace and do not take on new obligations. After 6:50 p. m. favors meetings and conferences.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—Today is an excellent day to decide just what you want to do. Make new contacts. Revive old ones. Press your pet projects. Be as cordial and expansive as you can. Make some definite plan for the ensuing year.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Your energies and ambitions will be strong today and until 8:30 p. m. you will desire swift progress or want to be in a hurry; therefore, you are likely to rush things too quickly to their ultimate conclusion. It will be better to move slowly and with caution. The period does not favor beginning new or important matters. After 8:30 p. m., conditions change, making this a favorable period for ordinary matters.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Today is an excellent day to decide just what you want to do. Make new contacts. Revive old ones. Press your pet projects. Be as cordial and expansive as you can. Make some definite plan for the ensuing year.

Hitler Scoffs At U.S. Plane Aid to Britain

No Powers on Earth Could Stop Germany, He Declares.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—(UP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, speaking in Munich on the 17th anniversary of the Nazi beer hall putsch, tonight asserted he would reject any compromise in the present struggle and declared there is "no coalition of powers on earth" that could withstand Germany and her allies, the official DNB news agency reported.

Predicting that Germany eventually will win the present war, Hitler was quoted by the news agency as saying that it is his "unalterable determination to continue the struggle to a clear decision" and that "today I reject any compromise."

Minimizes U. S. Aid. "Germany, with her allies, today is strong enough to stand against any combination on earth," he was quoted. "There is no coalition of powers which could withstand us."

He minimized the British blockade and United States airplane production, saying that "German productive capacity is the world's highest."

Speaking in Loewenbrau cellar, packed with Nazi "old guards," high Nazi party officials and the relatives of Nazi "martyrs," Hitler asserted that "the German nations will go to victory with unshakable faith and rock-bound trust in its leaders," DNB said.

"Spared by Providence." "I am convinced that Providence has brought me thus far and has spared me all the dangers in order to let me lead the German people in this battle," Hitler was quoted as saying.

The meeting also celebrated the first anniversary of Hitler's escape from attempted assassination when a time bomb was exploded in the Nazi shrine at last year's old guard meeting a few minutes after he had left.

Down the center of the hall at tonight's meeting were seated the relatives of the Nazis who fell in the putsch 17 years ago and of those who were killed by last year's bomb explosion.

Conductor Is Hurt In Fall From Train

Henry Williams, veteran Seaboard Airline Railway conductor, suffered minor injuries early last night when he stepped from a moving train as it approached Winder, Ga. He was hurled to the ground by the fall and was in a dazed condition when railroad men reached him.

After emergency treatment in Winder, he was taken to an Athens hospital, where his condition was reported as not serious. Williams was first discovered by the side of the tracks about 150 yards from the passenger station by G. F. Morgan, a Seaboard telegraph operator. He had apparently misjudged the speed of the train, witnesses reported.

The father of City Policeman Harry and Bob Williams, the conductor lives at 1468 Lucile avenue.

LADY AUTHORS—Lella Warren (left), of Clayton county, Ala., who wrote "Foundation Stone," a best seller, and Mrs. Rebecca Yancey Williams, of Richmond, author of "The Vanishing Virginian," another highly successful book, met here yesterday to talk about the tribulation of writing folk and to autograph their books.

Atlanta Visited By 2 Authors Of Best Sellers

Writers of 'Vanishing Virginian,' 'Foundation Stone' Here.

The town was full of authors yesterday.

One was Mrs. Rebecca Yancey Williams, of Richmond, whose book, "The Vanishing Virginian," is going into its eighth printing now. The other was Lella Warren, of Clayton county, Alabama, whose fine historical novel, "Foundation Stone," is expected to sell 300,000 copies by Christmas.

Mrs. Williams' book saw print because her Aunt Bessie, who is hard to please, saw it in manuscript and laughed uproariously, staid old Virginia lady though she is. If it tickled Aunt Bessie, Mrs. Williams figured, it should amuse a world borne down by the weight of war, so she rescued it from the bottom of a bureau and sent it off to the publishers.

Since it was a story about her father, a gruff, profane old Virginia lawyer, she figured it might have a fairly good sale in the environs of Richmond, or among expatriate Virginians. To her surprise it caught on everywhere, much in the manner of Clarence Day's "Life With Father," which was also the story of a type that is passing.

Mrs. Warren's book is more meaty. It tells the story of a southern family, migrating from South Carolina before the war to carve out a new life in an Alabama wilderness infested by Indians. It is the first of a trilogy. The second book will be built around the life of her father, who was the country's first public health doctor.

Some idea of the vigor of "Foundation Stone" may be had from the comment of a reviewer, who said of its principal character: "Scarlett O'Hara has been ex-operated. Compared to Lucinda Whetstone, of 'Foundation Stone,' Scarlett is a teacher of Sunday school."

Quake Shakes Bucharest And Rumanian Province

BUCHAREST, Nov. 8.—(UP)—An earthquake shook Bucharest for 30 minutes today, beginning at 2:01 o'clock this afternoon.

The quake apparently centered near Buzau, in the same area where tremors occurred October 22. Damage in Bucharest was slight. Reports had not been received from the provinces.

Northern N. Y. Caught in Grip Of Snowstorm

Six Inches Reported; Mercury Drops to 20 Degrees.

By The Associated Press. The first real snowstorm of the season ranged across northern New York state yesterday. Temperatures dropped to the 20-degree mark, and snow six inches deep was reported in some sections, including Mountain View and Owls Head, in the Adirondacks. Three to four inches fell at Malone and at Saranac Lake. Parts of Pennsylvania and the New England states had snow, also, but in lesser amounts. Snow was moving eastward from Canada in the northern states, also, while rain fell in Texas. Southeastern states reported temperatures in the low thirties, with frost in low places.

O. Henry Letter Found In Texas Land Office

When a clerk in the Texas Land Office at Austin recently opened a dusty old ledger the book disclosed a letter and attached check that had been in the volume apparently more than 50 years. The letter was written by "O. Henry." An initial "P" under the letterhead traced the authorship. Will S. Porter had been bookkeeper for the firm during 1886. The letter and check were dated July 31, 1886.

Porter was an employee of the State Land Office from 1887 to 1891. His flowing handwriting appears on many of the office records. Comparison showed he had written the letter.
